The Telecommunications Revolution Harvey M. Sapolsky, Rhonda J

Crane, W Russell Neuman, Eli M Noam, 2018-04-09 Originally published in 1992 this book charts the global restructuring of telecommunications industries away from the monopoly structures of the past towards increased competition deregulation and privatization The book's authors are international policy makers and scholars who examine the regulatory environment within a theoretical and historical context The book looks at the roots of regulatory and legislative changes by discussing individually the countries at the forefront of the revolution the UK France Germany Japan and the United States It examines the impact of new technology for consequences of change in trade and government policies The Political Economy of Communications Kenneth Dyson, Peter Humphreys, 2023-10-20 First published in 1990 The Political Economy of Communications explores the central theme of the relationship between politics and markets in policy development The contributors show how governments have been drawn into increasing interdependency by technological and market developments with international institutions like the European Community becoming more important in these policy areas They argue that neither government ideologies nor market and technological forces offer an adequate account of the processes of change in communications policy These conclusions lead to a critique of central theories of international political economy notably neo liberalism and the authors advocate instead a neo pluralist perspective for the study of political economy of communications an approach that takes institutions much more seriously as a central unit of analysis The book will be of interest to students of international relations European studies and media and telecommunication studies as well as to political scientists and economists concerned with public policy International Legal Books in Print, 1990-1991 Bowker-Saur, 1990 Globalisation, Convergence and European Telecommunications Regulation Peter Humphreys, Seamus Simpson, 2005 The authors provide an analysis of the development of the EU's regulatory framework for telecommunications in a globalising world They focus on the EU's regulatory policy response to technological convergence in the information and communications sector through its Electronic Communications Regulatory Framework The George Washington journal of international law and econo, 1988 Technology and Competition in the International Telecommunications Industry David R. Charles, 1989 A London Bibliography of the Social Sciences, 1931 Vols 1 4 include material to June 1 1929 Democratic Communications James F. Hamilton, 2008-02-07 While it has always been hard to do establishing a clear difference between mainstream media and alternative media has grown even more difficult within the past twenty years With the emergence of such efforts as open publishing web logging and video logging video posting websites citizen journalism creative commons initiatives and image focused anti corporate activism it has become increasingly difficult to navigate within this emerging media landscape The traditional lines between mainstream and alternative and between producers and consumers have been blurred This growing inability to adequately map this landscape demands that these lines be reconsidered New ways must be formed for probing implications of these new media outlets for democratization and global justice movements This book reconstitutes the cultural and historical roots of this protean media landscape and assesses its relevance to democratic communications Using a comprehensively argued cultural and historical analysis the book rethinks long standing assumptions about alternative media and democratic communications By providing greater understanding of historical resources limitations and possibilities this book makes a key contribution not only to scholarship in this area but also to this pressing social political and cultural issue North-South Information Culture Luke Uka Uche,1996 Configuring the Telecommunications Infrastructure for the Computer Age François Bar,1990
