Coalition Strategies of Marxist Parties Trond Gilberg, 1989 During the early part of this decade many individuals both policy makers and scholars wondered about the new look of some communist parties as they billed themselves as potential participants in the pluralistic game of politics in many parts of the world This image was certainly different from the old notion of dedicated revolutionaries who scornfully rejected the existing order and plotted its overflow How genuine was the new look Were the communists sincere when they discussed interaction with other elements of political order in which they operated What were their tactical policies in pursuit of these strategic goals Some of us began to examine these questions more systematically We ran a panel at an academic conference enjoyed the feedback from our colleagues and began the process of writing this book Now several years later it is a finished product after many full scale revisions and updates The topic is still very relevant and that shows the enduring importance of the questions asked a number of years ago Scholars will need to return to this question in the future perhaps the best strategy is a continuous examination of this crucial subject

The Communist Parties of Western Europe Neal R. Tannahill, 1978-12-04 Communist Parties in the Middle East

Laura Feliu, Ferran Izquierdo Brichs, 2019-05-17 Communist Parties in the Middle East 100 Years of History One hundred years since the Russian Revolution Communist parties have undergone great changes in an evolution that has affected the entire Left and the social movements Given that the impact of Communist parties and their evolution in the Middle East is a topic that has not been widely researched Communist parties in the Middle East 100 years of history aims to cover a century in the lives of these parties from the moment the Communist ideology first reached the region in the early 20th century brought by activists from minority groups and the creation of the first parties and trades unions after the 1917 revolution right up to the upheaval caused by the dissolution of the USSR and more recently the Arab Spring The book has been designed to offer a unique updated and comprehensive study of Communist parties in the Middle East based on both a theoretical framework of analysis and substantial empirical research and archive documentation Several issues are examined in this work When the Russian Revolution took place the Middle Eastern region as a whole was under colonial control This meant taking decisions related to the relationship between the class struggle and the national struggle The composition of the communist parties in the Middle East is also analysed as is their role as the vanguard understood in the broad sense of the word in relation to the objectives of liberation emancipation revolution and system change or reform and their connection to mass or popular movements Furthermore the volume looks back at the dependency or autonomy of communist parties during the Cold War and the tensions that this generated in them as well as the search for individual constructions of communism that took into account cultural characteristics and the local context of the struggle In this respect one of the recurring themes in the work is the relationship between communist activism and the sectors that mobilized in the name of nationalism or political Islam Finally the chapters trace the history of the parties including for the first time in the literature the post Cold War period and continuing to the current situation in which communist parties occupy a residual position in the political field sharing space with other small groups from the real Left new programmes adapted to neoliberal advancement in the region and the new mobilizations symbolized by the uprisings of 2010 2011 The first section of the book presents the evolution of the CPs in Iran Turkey Iraq Lebanon Syria Palestine and Israel Egypt South Yemen Sudan Algeria and Morocco The second section explores some cross cutting issues that have affected relations between the communist parties and other political sectors political Islam and the New Left Through the testimony of some leading figures it presents the arguments around the question of gender in the Arab world and in leftist circles as well as an example of the evolution of a female leftist activist some contradictions and the prominent debates from the most convulsive years to the present
