Communist Chinese Peasant Rebellions:

The Communists and Chinese peasant rebellions James P. Harrison, 1968 The Communists and Chinese Peasant Rebellions James P. Harrison, 1970 Peasant Nationalism and Communist Power Chalmers A. Johnson, 1962 This author researches the Chinese Communists wartime expansion according to the documentation recorded by Japanese intelligence then compares that expansion with that of the Yugoslav Communists The Communists and Chinese Peasant Rebellions - a Study in the Rewriting of Chinese History, 1969 Analysis of confucian social theory and of present day communist political theory of China on historical social movements of rural workers in China comprises an examination based on a literature survey of the claim that Chinese communist historians are attempting to re write the history of Chinese peasant rebellions with a view to ideological re education in respect of the whole of human history Bibliography and references pp 307 to 349 The Communists and Chinese Peasant Rebellions James Pinckney Harrison (historicus China.), 1970 Chinese Discourses on the Peasant, 1900-1949 Xiaorong Han, 2005-03-24 Xiaorong Han explores how Chinese intellectuals envisioned the peasantry and its role in changing society during the first half of the twentieth century Politically motivated intellectuals both Communist and non Communist believed that rural peasants and their villages would be at the heart of change during this long period of national crisis Nevertheless intellectuals saw themselves as the true shapers of change who would transform and use the peasantry Han uses intellectuals writings to provide a comprehensive look at their views of the peasantry He shows how intellectuals with varying politics created images of the peasant a supposed contemporary image and an ideal image of the peasant transformed for political ends how intellectuals theorized on the nature of Chinese rural life and how intellectuals conceived their own relationships with peasants Problems of Communism, 1969 Rebels and Revolutionaries in North China, 1845-1945 Elizabeth J. Perry, 1980-06-01 Why do peasants rebel In particular why do some peasants rebel and not others Starting from the fact that only in certain geographical areas does rebellion seem to recur persistently the author examines three notable rebel movements in one such area in China Huaipai a region of poor soil and unstable weather bounded by the Huai and Yellow Huang He rivers The Nien rebels of the 1850s and 1860s and the Red Spear Society of the Republican era are described as representing traditional forms of violent competition for scarce economic resources The Nien were essentially predatory using violence as a way of obtaining food and other necessities the Red Spears essentially protective concerned to defend peasant homes and property against bandits warlord armies and state efforts at taxation The communist movement of the 1930s and 1940s by contrast looked beyond these traditional patterns to a national social revolution that would render local rebellions unnecessary The author throws new light on the role of secret societies in peasant protest and offers a new interpretation of the relationship between rebellion and revolution The Communists and Chinese peasant rebellions James Pinckney Harrison, 1969 A Defining Moment William J. Crotty, 2005 Set against the backdrop of the Iraq war and a debate over moral values the 2004 presidential campaign presented voters with a choice that reflected divisions within the country This collection analyzes the election and its consequences examining the aspects of the election including the strategies and tactics of the Bush and Kerry campaigns Anthropological and historical sciences.
