Gibson, 2001 For years environmentalists thought natural resources could be best protected by national legislation But the poor outcomes of this top down policy have led conservation professionals today to regard local communities as the agents of conservation efforts According to a recent survey more than fifty countries report that they pursue partnerships with local communities in an effort to protect their forests Despite the recent popularity of a community based approach the concept of community rarely receives the attention it should get from those concerned with resource management This balanced volume redresses the situation demonstrating both the promise and the potential dangers of community action Although the contributors advocate community based conservation they examine the record with a critical eye They pay attention to the concrete political contexts in which communities emerge and operate Understanding the nature of community requires understanding the internal politics of local regions and their relationship to external forces and actors Especially critical are issues related to ethnicity gender and the state Indigenous and Local Communities and Protected Areas Grazia Borrini, Ashish Kothari, Gonzalo Oviedo, 2004 Conventional approaches to managing protected areas have often seen people and nature as separate entities They preclude human communities from using natural resources and assume that their concerns are incompatible with conservation Protected area approaches and models that see conservation as compatible with human communities are explored The main themes are co managed protected areas and community conserved areas Practical guidance is offered drawing on recent experience reflections and advice developed at the local national regional and international level Communities and Conservation J Peter Brosius,Anna Lowenhaupt Tsing,Charles Zerner,2005-07-21 The distinguished environmentalists in this collection offer an in depth analysis and call to advocacy for community based natural resource management CBNRM Their overview of this transnational movement reveals important links between environmental management and social justice agendas for sustainable use of resources by local communities In this volume leaders who have been instrumental in creating and shaping CBNRM describe their model programs the countermapping movement and collective claims to land and resources legal strategies for gaining rights to resources and territories biodiversity conservation and land stabilization priorities and environmental justice and minority rights This book will be of value to instructors practitioners and activists in anthropology cultural geography environmental justice environmental policy political ecology indigenous rights conservation biology and CBNRM Conservation with Communities Strategy New Zealand. The Conservation Fund, 2012-09-26 With illustrative and detailed examples drawn from throughout the country Green Infrastructure advances smart land conservation large scale thinking and integrated action to plan protect and manage our natural and restored lands From the individual parcel to the multi state region Green Infrastructure helps each of us look at the landscape in relation to the many uses it could serve for nature and people and determine which use makes the most sense In this wide ranging primer leading experts in the field provide a detailed how to for planners designers landscape architects and citizen activists Communities in Transition: Protected Nature and Local People in Eastern and Central Europe Dr Saska Petrova, 2014-06-28 Providing an integrated perspective on why how and for whom nature conservation practices have been implemented in CEE this book sheds further light upon the mechanisms through which such practices both redefine and are affected by the everyday life of people living in national parks Offering a critical global review of the environmental motivations and power interests behind the creation of national parks as well as a typology of the relations between local people and the dynamics of nature protection in them this work challenges the dichotomy between developed and developing countries that pervades much of the academic literature on nature protection Our Forest, Your Ecosystem, Their Timber Nicholas K. Menzies, 2007-05-15

Community based forest management CBFM is a model of forest management in which a community takes part in decision making and implementation and monitoring of activities affecting the natural resources around them CBFM provides a framework for a community members to secure access to the products and services that flow from the landscape in which they live and has become an essential component of any comprehensive approach to forest management In this volume Nicholas K Menzies looks at communities in China Zanzibar Brazil and India where despite differences in landscape climate politics and culture common challenges and themes arise in making a transition from forest management by government agencies to CBFM The stories of these four distinct places highlight the difficulties communities face when trying to manage their forests and negotiate partnerships with others interested in forest management such as the commercial forest sector or conservation and environmental organizations These issues are then considered against a growing body of research concerning what constitutes successful CBFM Drawing on published and unpublished case studies project reports and his own rich experience Menzies analyzes how CBFM fits into the broader picture of the management of natural resources highlighting the conditions that bring about effective practices and the most just and equitable stewardship of resources A critical companion for students researchers and practitioners Our Forest Your Ecosystem Their Timber provides a singular resource on the emergence and evolution of CBFM

The Ecology of Hope Ted Bernard, Jora M. Young, 1997 The Ecology of Hope is a remarkably upbeat account of a number of communities where collaboration among different factions and interest groups has led to breakthrough consensus on plans for achieving sustainability The authors reveal the hopeful trend toward unanimous agreement on difficult local resource issues in forestry rangeland watershed and fisheries management in which citizens government business and even one time foes form exciting collaborative partnerships The Ecology of Hope recounts the stories of nine communities helping to blaze this new trail located as far apart as the Maine and Virginia coasts Tennessee Wisconsin California and the southwest The authors weigh what has worked and what has not and trace hopeful routes toward sustainable resource management applicable to communities everywhere
