Communities And Forests Where People Meet The Land:

Communities and Forests Robert G. Lee, Donald R. Field, 2005 Communities and Forests offers a timely view of the changing face of forests and forestry in North America today. In examining interactions between people and forests, the book shows that forests are as much a social institution as they are a biological resource. The book begins with an investigation of the historical and sociological foundations of community-based forest management. Chapters in the second section highlight the diverse issues surrounding community forestry, specifically the conflicts between the management of public forestlands and the interests of various stakeholders in using forests as a public good. The final section examines urban forestry, focusing on both the importance of forestry in urban settings and the demographic shifts that have brought people with urban values and lifestyles to rural forested settings.

Scales of Governance and Indigenous Peoples' Rights Irene Bellier, Jennifer Hays, 2019-10-08 This book takes an interdisciplinary approach to the complicated power relations surrounding the recognition and implementation of Indigenous Peoples' rights at multiple scales. The adoption of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in 2007 was heralded as the beginning of a new era for Indigenous Peoples' participation in global governance bodies as well as for the realization of their rights in particular the right to self-determination. These rights are defined and agreed upon internationally but must be enacted at regional, national, and local scales. Can the global movement to promote Indigenous Peoples' rights change the experience of communities at the local level? Or are the concepts that it mobilizes around rights and political tools essentially a discourse circulating internationally, relatively disconnected from practical situations? Are the categories and processes associated with Indigenous Peoples' simply an extension of colonial categories and processes, or do they challenge existing norms and structures? This collection draws together the works of anthropologists, political scientists, and legal scholars to address such questions. Examining the legal, historical, political, economic, and cultural dimensions of the Indigenous Peoples' rights movement at global, regional, national, and local levels, the chapters present a series of case studies that reveal the complex power relations that inform the ongoing struggles of Indigenous Peoples' to secure their human rights. The book will be of interest to social scientists and legal scholars studying Indigenous Peoples' rights and international human rights movements in general.

Accelerating Innovative Monitoring for Forests (AIM4Forests) Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, The mid-term review (MTR) report of the Accelerating Innovative Monitoring for Forests (AIM4Forests) programme was conducted at the request of the AIM4Forests steering committee and in line with the United Kingdom AIM4Forests business case. The main purpose was to provide an independent assessment of the programme's progress and likelihood of achieving the set goals and make recommendations to enhance programme performance and address strategic issues concerning the programme scope. The MTR focused on the programme from its start in mid-2023 until December 2024, covering programme activities and results at all levels. The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland have launched AIM4Forests a five year programme to support forest monitoring based on modern monitoring technologies and technical innovation as well as the use of space data and remote sensing The programme is all about leveraging technical innovation to create data and information to inform the right courses of action to reduce deforestation and restore forests AIM4Forests will leverage everything that technology and innovation offers such as artificial intelligence and machine learning In addition it will also make sure that the capacity is transferred to countries including Indigenous Peoples and local communities who manage the forests only that way can we see real change

Models for formalizing customary and community forest lands Larson, A.M., Monterroso, I., Liswanti, N., Herawati, T., Banana, A.Y., Canturias, P., Rivera, K., Mwangi, E., 2019-02-06 A comparison of community perceptions across the two main forest tenure reform regimes forestland designated for community use versus land owned by communities does not show on the ground that one has consistently better outcomes than the other This is likely due to multiple weaknesses in both types of reforms and the need to better integrate rights conservation and livelihoods goals Survey results from Indonesia Peru and Uganda show a disturbing level of food insecurity across almost all sites and with prioritization of rights and or conservation a failure to pay sufficient attention to livelihoods concerns Greater attention to livelihoods requires a increased awareness of food security and livelihoods needs in rural communities b specific livelihoods goals as an objective of reforms and c greater multisectoral and multilevel coordination in order to bring this about Livelihoods concerns should be incorporated as a clear goal in forest tenure reforms and as a measurable indicator in efforts to evaluate reforms

Community Forestry in Nepal Richard Thwaites, Robert Fisher, Mohan Poudel, 2017-12-11 Community forestry focuses on the link between forest resources and livelihoods and contributes to forest conservation and reforestation It is widespread in Nepal with a very high proportion of the rural population involved and is widely recognized as one of the most successful examples of community forestry in Asia Through a combination of literature reviews and original research this volume explores key experiences and outcomes of community forestry in Nepal over the last four decades as a model for improving forest management and supporting local livelihoods The book takes a critical approach recognizing successes especially in forest conservation and restoration along with mixed outcomes in terms of poverty reduction and benefits to forest users It recognizes the way that community forestry has continued to evolve to meet new challenges including the global challenges of climate change environmental degradation and conservation as well as national demographic and social changes due to large scale labour migration and the growing remittance economy In addition to examining the changes and responses the book explores ways that community forestry in Nepal might move forward Lessons from Nepal have relevance to community forestry and community based approaches to natural resource management around the world that are also experiencing global pressures and opportunities

Patrick D. Hardcastle, 2020-10-27 Explores the broader economic political and environmental context in which management of tropical forests needs to operate Particular focus on management structures and techniques to achieve sustainable forest management SFM on the ground Includes case studies of practical experience of managing tropical forests in South America West Africa and Southeast Asia Community Forest Management Joe Human, Manoj Pattanaik, 2000-01-01 This book analyses the achievements of the movement Friends of Trees and Living Beings and considers its significance within the context of a national legal and policy frameworks drawing on candid interviews with villagers activists NGO staff and forestry officials Congressional Record United States. Congress, 2002 Communities and Conservation J Peter Brosius, Anna Lowenhaupt Tsing, Charles Zerner, 2005-07-21 The distinguished environmentalists in this collection offer an in depth analysis and call to advocacy for community based natural resource management CBNRM Their overview of this transnational movement reveals important links between environmental management and social justice agendas for sustainable use of resources by local communities In this volume leaders who have been instrumental in creating and shaping CBNRM describe their model programs the countermapping movement and collective claims to land and resources legal strategies for gaining rights to resources and territories biodiversity conservation and land stabilization priorities and environmental justice and minority rights This book will be of value to instructors practitioners and activists in anthropology cultural geography environmental justice environmental policy political ecology indigenous rights conservation biology and CBNRM The Community Food Forest Handbook Catherine Bukowski, John Munsell, 2018 Collaboration and leadership strategies for long term success Fueled by the popularity of permaculture and agroecology community food forests are capturing the imaginations of people in neighborhoods towns and cities across the United States Along with community gardens and farmers markets community food forests are an avenue toward creating access to nutritious food and promoting environmental sustainability where we live Interest in installing them in public spaces is on the rise People are the most vital component of community food forests but while we know more than ever about how to design food forests the ways in which to best organize and lead groups of people involved with these projects has received relatively little attention In The Community Food Forest Handbook Catherine Bukowski and John Munsell dive into the civic aspects of community food forests drawing on observations group meetings and interviews at over 20 projects across the country and their own experience creating and managing a food forest They combine the stories and strategies gathered during their research with concepts of community development and project management to outline steps for creating lasting public food forests that positively impact communities Rather than rehash food forest design which classic books such as Forest Gardening and Edible Forest Gardens address in great detail The Community Food Forest Handbook uses systems thinking and draws on social change theory to focus on how to work with diverse groups of people when conceiving of designing and implementing a community food forest To find practical ground the authors use management phases to highlight the ebb and flow of community capitals from a project's inception to its completion. They also explore examples of positive feedbacks that are often unexpected but offer avenues for enhancing the success of a community food forest. The Community Food Forest Handbook provides readers with helpful ideas for building and sustaining momentum working with diverse public and private stakeholders integrating assorted civic interests and visions within one project creating safe and attractive sites navigating community policies positively affecting public perception and managing site evolution and adaptation. Its concepts and examples showcase the complexities of community food forests highlighting the human resilience of those who learn and experience what is possible when they collaborate on a shared vision for their community.
