Communication Yearbook 5 Michael Burgoon, 1981-12-01 Published under the auspices of the International Communication Association, this volume, the fifth in the Communication Yearbook series, provides an annual overview and synthesis of developments in the science of communication. Disciplinary reviews and commentaries on general topics in all subdivisions of communication accompany analyses of developments in communication theory and research in specialized areas within the communication sciences. Among the areas covered are information systems, interpersonal communication, political communication, instructional communication, health communication, mass communication, organizational communication, and intercultural communication. Reviews and commentaries are commissioned by the editor and divisional overviews are prepared by scholars in each area of specialization. Articles presenting current research are selected through competitive judging processes within each interest area.

Functionalism Revisited Jon Lang, Walter Moleski, 2016-12-05 A range of current approaches to architecture are neglected in our contemporary writings on design philosophies. This book argues that the model of function and the concept of a functional building that we have inherited from the twentieth century Modernists is limited in scope and detracts from a full understanding of the purposes served by the built environment. It simply does not cover the range of functions that buildings can afford nor is it tied in a conceptually clear manner to our contemporary concepts of architectural theory. Based on Abraham Maslow's theory of human motivations and following on from Lang's widely used text Creating Architectural Theory: The Role of the Behavioral Sciences in Environmental Design, Lang and Moleski here propose a new model of functionalism that responds to numerous observations on the inadequacy of current ways of thinking about functionalism in architecture and urban design. Copiously illustrated, the book puts forward this model and then goes on to discuss in detail each function of buildings and urban environments.

Growing Compact Joo Hwa P. Bay, Steffen Lehmann, 2017-07-06 Growing Compact: Urban Form, Density, and Sustainability explores and unravels the phenomena, links, and benefits between density, compactness, and the sustainability of cities. It looks at the socio-climatic implications of density and takes a more holistic approach to sustainable urbanism by understanding the correlations between the social, economic, and environmental dimensions of the city and the challenges and opportunities with density. The book presents contributions from internationally well-known scholars, thinkers, and practitioners whose theoretical and practical works address city planning urban and architectural design for density and sustainability at various levels including challenges in building resilience against climate change and natural disasters capacity and integration for growth and adaptability ageing community and security vegetation food production compact resource systems and regeneration EDRA 13 Environmental Design Research Association.
