Williamson, Council of Europe, 2014-01-01 Ukraine is the 19th country overall and the third of the Commonwealth of independent States following Armenia and Moldova to have its youth policy reviewed by the Council of Europe's international review team. Ukraine presented a range of new challenges; it was by far the largest country geographically and it embodied geo-political characteristics from North to South and East to West that are reflected in its philosophy and approach to youth policy development. This international review explores three issues of particular interest to the Ukrainian authorities: health and healthy lifestyles, employment and employability, and patriotic education and citizenship. In addition, the international review pays special attention to questions of youth participation and engagement and to those groups of vulnerable young people who are at most risk of social exclusion. The review argues for the establishment of a more open development model for youth policy in Ukraine, supported by a clear strategic vision and the strengthening of its commitment to local capacity and autonomy in shaping relevant programmes and projects. In particular, it also advocates the promotion of more diverse methodologies in the implementation of youth policy based on non-formal learning and skills development principles.

Thomas, 2007 Youth Online chronicles the stories of young people from several countries: the US, Australia, Canada, Switzerland, and Holland, and their interactions in online communities over a seven-year period. It examines how young people construct their identities in various social contexts: social fantasy, role playing, and for various social purposes: leadership, learning, power, rebellion, and romance. It explores the ways youth are deploying both visual and literary cues to develop a full sense of presence online and to effectively communicate with their peers. Using methods of textual, visual, and socio-psychological analysis, this book illuminates the ways in which young people are making sense of their own identities and their place within broader communities.
