Counterworks Managing The Diversity Of Knowledge:

Counterworks Richard Fardon, 2003-12-16 Globalization is often described as the spread of western culture to other parts of the world How accurate is the depiction of cultural flow In Counterworks ten anthropologists examine the ways in which global processes have affected particular localities where they have carried out research They challenge the validity of anthropological concepts of culture in the light of the pervasive connections which exist between local and global factors everywhere Rather than assuming that the world is culturally diverse this book proposes that culture is itself a representation of the similarities and difference recognized between forms of social life The authors address issues of globalization in terms of diverse histories and traditions of knowledge which may include the construction of difference as cultural In its attention to specific local situations such as Bali Cuba Bolivia Greece Kenya and the Maoris in New Zealand Counterworks argues that the apparent opposition between strong westernizing global forces and weak concept of culture which supposes cultures to be integrated and possessed of essential properties needs rethinking in a contemporary world where a marked sense of culture has become a wide spread property of people s social knowledge The book will have wide appeal to anthropologists to students of comparative studies in history religion and language and to anyone interested in the phenomenon of postmodernism

Indigenous Environmental Knowledge and Its Transformations Alan Bicker, Roy Ellen, Peter Parkes, 2003-12-16 The first concerted critical examination of the uses and abuses of indigenous knowledge The contributors focus on a series of interrelated issues in their interrogation of indigenous knowledge and its specific applications within the localised contexts of particular Asian societies and regional cultures In particular they explore the problems of translation and mistranslation in the local global transference of traditional practices and representations of resources

Globalization: A Threat to Cultural Diversity in Southern Ethiopia? Sandra Herting, 2011-11 There are numerous ethnic groups in southern Ethiopia of which most also speak their own language and have distinct cultural trades But how would the future of the different ethnic groups and their cultural heritage look like in the face of globalization processes Is this cultural and linguistic diversity now diminishing through globalization processes and becoming replaced by a homogenous global culture This study examines whether the cultures of southern Ethiopia are being penetrated by American popular culture local cultural products are threatened with extinction and whether traditional lifestyles are becoming abandoned because the people of south Ethiopia are increasingly becoming part of a global consumer culture What about modernization efforts by development projects and the global spread of formal education through schooling do they contribute to the elimination of indigenous knowledge systems And does the spread of the English language already constitute a threat to linguistic diversity Moreover the impacts of the arrivals of international tourists and of Christian missionary organizations on the cultures of the different ethnic groups are being examined

Media and Migration Russell King, Nancy Wood, 2013-04-15 This title explores the close and vital relationship between the contemporary media and immigration Drawing on newspapers magazines film television and photography the contributors examine the effects of mass media on migration behaviour and ethnic identity Using examples from a range of countries Media and Migration illustrates how the media intervenes to affect the reception migrants receive how it stimulates prospective migrants to move and how it plays a dynamic role in the cultural politics and cultural identity of diasporic communities Routledge Handbook of Agricultural Biodiversity Danny Hunter, Luigi Guarino, Charles Spillane, Peter C. McKeown, 2017-10-03 The world relies on very few crop and animal species for agriculture and to supply its food needs In recent decades there has been increased appreciation of the risk this implies for food security and quality especially in times of environmental change As a result agricultural biodiversity has moved to the top of research and policy agendas This Handbook presents a comprehensive overview of our current knowledge of agricultural biodiversity in a series of specially commissioned chapters It draws on multiple disciplines including plant and animal genetics ecology crop and animal science food studies and nutrition as well as social science subjects which explore the socio economic cultural institutional legal and policy aspects of agricultural biodiversity It focuses not only on the core requirements to deliver a sustainable agriculture and food supply but also highlights the additional ecosystem services provided by a diverse and resilient agricultural landscape and farming practices The book provides an indispensable reference textbook for a wide range of courses in agriculture ecology biodiversity conservation and environmental studies Biological Diversity Louise E. Buck, Charles C. Geisler, John Schelhas, Eva Wollenberg, 2001-06-21 We live in a world of wide pendulum swings regarding management policies for protected areas particularly as they affect the involvement of local people in management Such swings can be polarizing and halt on the ground progress There is a need to find ways to protect biodiversity while creating common ground and building management capacity thr Culture and Authenticity Charles Lindholm, 2008 Authenticity is taken for granted as an absolute value in contemporary life We speak of authentic art music food dance and people Authenticity in its many guises offers seekers a sense of belonging connection and solidity This work argues that the pervasive desire for authenticity is a consequence of a modern loss of faith and meaning Island Musics Kevin Dawe, 2020-05-26 What does the music of Madagascar or Trinidad tell us about the islands themselves and their inhabitants Is there something unique about island musics How does island music differ from its mainland counterparts Drawing on a range of diverse examples from around the globe this book examines the culture of island music and offers insight into local identities Case studies look at how music tradition popular culture and islander life are linked in modern maritime societies The islands covered include Crete Ibiza Zanzibar Trinidad Cuba Madagascar and Papua New Guinea In revealing the current practice behind modern island musics the book considers the role of world music exotica global tourism novels and travel writing in constructing fanciful images of islanders and island life Island Musics throws into question some of our most basic notions and assumptions about island societies There are a number of problems common to all island societies that vary in significance depending on an islands size demographics and its proximity to the mainland Problems include remoteness and insularity peripherality to centralized sites of decision making a limited range of natural resources specialization of economics small markets a narrow skills base poor infrastructure and environmental fragility These issues are discussed in relation to the creation of music in the construction of an islander identity Of particular interest is the way in which islanders discuss their music and how it articulates the idea of the other and diaspora Finally Island Musics considers the musical industry music education and the preservation of musical cultural heritage
