Community Penalties Hc 2001:

Probation and Privatisation Philip Bean, 2018-10-10 Privatisation was introduced into the probation service on the 1st June 2014 whereby work with medium and low risk offenders went to a number of private and voluntary bodies work with high risk offenders remained with the State The National Probation Service NPS covered State work whilst the 35 existing Probation Trusts were replaced by 21 Community Rehabilitation Companies CRCs Staff were allocated to either side of the divide but all remained as probation officers The effect was that the existing probation service lost control of all but 30 000 of the most high risk cases with the other 220 000 low to medium risk offenders being farmed out to private firms Privatisation was justified as the only available way of achieving important policy objectives of extending post release supervision to offenders on short sentences a group who are the most prolific offenders with high reconviction rates yet who receive no statutory support This book describes the process by which the probation service became privatised assessing its impact on the probation service itself and on the criminal justice system generally It considers both the justifications for privatisation as well as the criticisms of it and asks to what extent the probation service can survive such changes and what future it has as a service dedicated to the welfare of offenders It demonstrates how the privatisation of probation can be seen as a trend away from traditional public service in criminal justice towards an emphasis on efficiency and cost effectiveness This book is essential reading for criminology students engaged with criminal justice social policy probation punishment and working with offenders It will also be key reading for practitioners and policy makers in jurisdictions where there is an interest in extending their own privatisation practice

Reform and Punishment Sue Rex, Michael Tonry, 2012-12-06 In this book a group of leading authorities in the field address the key issues surrounding the future of sentencing in Britain in the light particularly of the highly influential Halliday Report These proposals for reform amount to the single most ambitious and comprehensive set of proposals for reconstituting the sentencing system of a common law country and include proposals to replace existing sentencing statutes the establishment of a sentencing commission and sentencing guidelines and the creation of a sentence review function in the judiciary As well as addressing the major issues of the Halliday Report the chapters in this book go beyond this to explore the broader set of policy problems and implications which are raised drawing upon experiences of reform in other jurisdictions and contexts particularly that of the USA This book will be essential reading for anybody with an interest in the future of sentencing or the future direction of the criminal justice system as a whole

Confronting Capital Punishment in Asia Roger Hood, Surya Deva, 2013-11-07 With the strengthening focus worldwide on human rights there has been a rapid increase in recent years in the number of countries that have completely abolished the death penalty This is in recognition that it is a violation of the right to life and the right to be free from cruel inhuman and degrading punishment There has simultaneously been pressure on countries that still retain capital punishment to ensure that they at least apply the United Nations minimum human rights safeguards established to protect the rights of those facing the death penalty This book shows that the majority of Asian countries have been particularly resistant to the abolitionist movement and tardy in accepting their responsibility to uphold the safeguards The essays contained in this volume provide an in depth analysis of changes in the scope and application of the death penalty in Asia with a focus on China India Japan and Singapore They explain the extent to which these nations still fail to accept capital punishment as a human rights issue identify impediments to reform and explore the prospects that Asian countries will eventually embrace the goal of worldwide abolition of capital punishment

Towards Effective Sentencing Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Justice Committee, 2008 This report evaluates the extent to which the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 to provide overall structure and clarity to sentencing by reserving prison for the most dangerous offenders and by making effective provision to deal with other offenders through community sentence have been implemented and its impact on sentencing The Committee is concerned that the Government failed to engage in any adequate resource and capacity planning for the coming into effect of the Imprisonment for Public Protection IPP This new sentence was not accompanied by the level of custodial resources required to make it work Meanwhile the desired shift to community penalties where public safety is not at issue has not occurred to the extent that was hoped Resources are a fundamental issue in delivering an effective sentencing strategy So too is public confidence in the criminal justice system The Government has failed to provide the information and leadership required to facilitate an informed public debate while the media climate for such debate often depends on isolated discussion of particular cases which inhibits calm consideration While the Government accepted the recommendations of Lord Carter's review of prisons the Committee found his report deeply unimpressive as it was not evidence based and was a missed opportunity It should have considered how to develop new ideas to address the problems with sentencing and provision of custodial and non custodial facilities in England and Wales The Government has not learnt vital lessons from past experience It needs to adopt a strategic approach to sentencing The Committee make a series of detailed recommendations around these issues in order to make further progress towards effective sentencing

The History of Probation Philip Whitehead,Roger Statham,2006 This work tells the story of probation from its religious beginnings in 1876 through to the present day It explores probation by alluding to crime imprisonment politics and power increasing central control and criminology Prisons and Their Moral Performance Alison Liebling,Helen Arnold,2004 Penal practices have undergone important transformations over the period from 1990 to 2003 Part of this transformation included a serious flirtation with a liberal penal project that went wrong A significant contributory factor in this unfortunate turn of events was a lack of clarity by those working in and managing prisons about important terms such as justice liberal and care and how they might apply to daily penal life Official measures of the prison service seem to lack relevance to many who live and work in prison and to their critics The author proposes that a truer test of the quality of prison life is what staff and prisoners have to say about those aspects of prison life that matter most relationships fairness order and the quality of their treatment by those above them The book attempts a detailed analysis and measurement of these dimensions in five prisons It finds significant differences between establishments in these areas of prison life and some departures from the official vision of the prison supported by the performance framework Sentencing and Punishment Susan Easton,Christine Piper,2022-12-01 Examining the theory behind the headlines and engaging with current debates this new edition provides thoughtful impartial and unbiased coverage of sentencing and punishment in the UK Collectively Susan Easton and Christine Piper are highly experienced teachers and researchers in this field making them perfectly placed to deliver this lively account of a highly dynamic subject area The book takes a thorough and systematic approach to sentencing and punishment examining key topics from legal philosophical and practical perspectives Offering in depth and detailed coverage while remaining clear and succinct the authors deliver a balanced approach to the subject Chapter summaries discussion questions and case studies help students to engage with the subject apply their knowledge and reflect upon debates Fully reworked and restructured this fifth edition has been updated to include developments such as the Sentencing Act 2020 and changes following the 2019 general election This is the essential guide for anyone studying sentencing and punishment as part of a law or criminology course The Penal System Michael Cavadino,James Dignan,2002-03-29 Praise for the First Edition The authors appear to do an excellent job of describing the criminal justice system of England and how the penal system fits into and is affected by it Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice The Third Edition of this highly successful textbook provides an accessible introduction to the penal system of England and Wales Now fully revised and updated it includes an examination of the direction of penal policy under New Labour Australian Current Law ,2000 Crime and Civil Society David G. Green,Emma Grove,Nadia A. Martin,2005 Crime is said to be coming down according to the British Crime Survey But the BCS only began in 1981 when crime was at historically high levels Furthermore the BCS records only some crimes less than half with very significant omissions This report shows that the government is failing to get even the most basic things right Prison should get offenders off drugs and teach them a vocational skill Most prisoners have a drug problem and find that they can feed their habit while inside A lot of money is spent on education but thousands of offenders leave prison without a workplace skill Money is being wasted on rehabilitation schemes that have failed to reduce offending There is an unwillingness to recognise either the deterrent effect of prison or its simple incapacitation effect criminals don t commit crimes while they are locked up We need a new crime reduction strategy that will include social investment in institutions that encourage law abiding behaviour especially the family that will reduce the net benefits of crime to the criminal and will use the best methods to help prisoners to turn their lives around Index to Legal Periodicals & Books ,2005 Devils and Angels Julia Fionda,2005-12-30 The book addresses the consequences of criminalization the effectiveness of the measures used and the implications for attitudes towards the young Government Publications Great Britain. Her Majesty's Stationery Office,1980 Justice of the Peace ,2002 Options for a New Britain Varun Uberoi,2009-02-12 This volume is a follow up to its highly influential predecessor Options for Britain which in 1995 brought together a leading group of academics and policy experts to assess the key economic social and constitutional policy options for Britain A decade on and the British political world is very different Much of the analysis in Options for Britain has become accepted wisdom and many of the policy proposals have become reality However there is also a sense of d j vu The Labour government has been in power for a decade and governments find it difficult to refresh themselves in power as the legacy of their own decisions build up It is in these historical moments that outside thinking such as that embodied within Options for a New Britain can have a decisive influence helping to inform the public and key commentators and to provide a source of ideas and inspiration Leading policy experts examine what has happened over the last decade across a broad range of key policy areas what are the current challenges and what options might an incoming government regardless of political persuasion have to address them House Legislative Record of the ...
