Community Organizations Studies In Resource Mobilization And Exchange:

Community Organizations Carl Milofsky, 1988-05-26 Local nonprofit organizations are often small loosely structured and democratically governed and therefore do not fit conveniently into traditional theories of organizational behavior that are rooted in administrative science and bureaucratic structure Treating community organizations as parts of larger systems organizational fields or ecologies and communities this collection of papers presents various perspectives on local nonprofit organizations from the standpoint of organizational theory The essays draw on an array of methods and theoretical approaches taken from population ecology theories of organizations laying the foundation for the structural analysis of community organizations Community Organizations Carl Milofsky, 1988-01-01 This book examines the roles functions and governance of non profit organizations that work on behalf of the welfare of citizens of specific communities

Management Control in a Voluntary Organization Peter Booth, 2018-04-17 This book originally published in 1995 is concerned with the study of accounting within its organizational and social context The author analyses accounting as having potential effects at both an ideological level and at an occupational level Empirically it is explored within the context of voluntary organizations as theoretically interesting extreme cases where the conditions for accounting to be significant should be most open to question This title will be of interest to students of business studies and management Local Environmental Struggles Kenneth A. Gould, Kenneth Gould, Allan Schnaiberg, Adam S. Weinberg, 1996-07-13 In recent years environmentalism in the US has increasingly emerged at the community level focusing on local ecological problems Correspondingly the American environmental movement has exhorted its supporters to think globally but act locally The authors examine this modern environmental mantra by analysing the opportunities and constraints on local environmental action posed by economic and political structures at all levels The difficulties involved in local activism are explored in three case studies a wetlands protection project water pollution of the Great Lakes and consumer waste recycling The final chapter then reflects on the challenges facing citizen worker movements in each case study and concludes that despite the inherent difficulties any successful attempt at mobilisation must have a local component Smallville Carl Milofsky, 2008 Familiar organizational theories often do not fit comfortably when applied to community level associations or small local nonprofit organizations In Smallville Carl Milofsky empirically and theoretically studies the organizational dynamics involved in this common American model Organizations functioning within a community are usually treated as separate units but when they all exist in the same place and tend to be made up of the same people who are living out different aspects of their identities in various settings a new analytical paradigm is required Milofsky's study culminates in the formulation of an innovative way of understanding this phenomenon an essential pioneering theory of transorganizations Community Chest , Voluntary contributions by private citizens and corporations in amounts ranging from a few coins to millions of dollars are a major factor in the maintenance of the American way of life It is difficult to imagine the consequences if this source of support for the work of religious bodies health and welfare agencies and educational and research institutions were materially reduced This case study focused on Indianapolis examines a critical mass fund raising and giving program Community chests in many communities evolved into the present day United Way In design scope and detail this study was without precedent when it was initially published in the 1950s But Community Chest is more than an examination of local problems of fund raising It also makes a decisive contribution to knowledge of philanthropic practice that is of general relevance to the social sciences The book asks and seeks answers to the most ticklish issues of philanthropic fund raising What may agencies expect in contributions from different social segments How does one begin to estimate the need for philanthropic dollars in a given community How can the public guard the interests of both ultimate recipients of assistance and donors In short what elements are crucial to success or failure in financing voluntary agencies not merely in terms of money but with full regard for the needs and potentials of citizens and the community as a whole Sociologists welfare personnel and professionals involved in financial development will find in this book an extraordinary amount of material both factual and interpretive suggesting new approaches to the perplexing problems of community fund raising A new introduction prepared by Carl Milofsky is a fascinating study of the tensions involved in the selection of the senior author John R Seeley and of the critical response to this controversial study This new material itself uniquely contributes to the sociology of knowledge
