Communication For Development In The Third World Theory And Practice From 1950s To 1990s:

Community Radio and Its Influence in the Society Joseph Okechukwu Offor, 2002 The indispensability of radio as efficient and effective means of communication in today's African society is indisputable. However, for this medium to be useful in Africa or Enugu State, Nigeria, it has to be changed from being a means of transmitting to people but also of receiving from them. It has to be a radio that allows rural listeners not only to hear but should also to be the people's parliament where the voice of the people can be heard. The author explores the development of community radio in different parts of Africa with particular reference to Enugu State, Nigeria. He proposes that community radio is a desideratum for genuine development to take place in Enugu State. Joseph Okechukwu Offor is a Catholic priest of the Enugu diocese in Nigeria. He studied philosophy and theology in Rome and Frankfurt am Main where he completed his doctoral thesis. He currently works at the Domradio in Cologne which belongs to the arch diocese of Cologne, Germany.

Rural development Kristof Van Assche, Anna-Katharina Hornidge, 2023-09-04 This book offers a unique perspective on rural development by discussing the most influential perspectives and rendering their risks and benefits visible. The authors do not present a silver bullet. Rather, they give students, researchers, community leaders, politicians, concerned citizens, and development organizations the conceptual tools to understand how things are organized now, which development path has already been taken, and how things could possibly move in a different direction. Van Assche and Hornidge pay special attention to the different roles of knowledge in rural development: both expert knowledge in various guises and local knowledge. Crafting development strategies requires understanding how new knowledge can fit in and work out in governance. Drawing on experiences in five continents, the authors develop a theoretical framework which elucidates how modes of governance and rural development are inextricably tied. A community is much better placed to choose direction when it understands these ties.

Feminist Interventions in International Communication Katharine Sarikakis, Leslie Regan Shade, 2007-10-05 This cutting edge work critiques today's global mediascape through feminist perspectives, highlighting concerns of policy, power, labor, and technology. Starting with the general state of international communications, the book uses feminist political economic and policy analyses to explore the globalization of media industries, including questions about women's employment and media content that is globally produced and consumed. A top notch group of authors covers cases on online news, pornography, and explicit material, political participation, and democracy; policies for women's development; violence against women; labor practices and information workers; print media and publishing; public telecentres; media coverage of HIV/AIDS and more. Providing fresh feminist insights into international communication, this essential book shows the important strides taken toward women's justice in these areas and how far there is yet to go.

Re-Envisioning Global Development Sandra Halperin, 2013-04-17 Re

Envisioning Global Development offers an original conceptualisation of capitalist development from its origins to the present day. Most approaches to understanding contemporary development assume that industrial capitalism was achieved through a process of nationally organised economic growth and that in recent years its organisation has become increasingly trans local or global. However, Halperin shows that nationally organised economic growth has rarely been the case; it has only recently come to characterise a few countries and for only a few decades. This innovative text elaborates an alternative ontology and way of thinking about global development during the last two centuries, one linked not to nations and regions but to a set of essentially trans national relations and connections. It argues that capitalist development has everywhere and from the start involved not whole nations or societies but only sectors or geographical areas within states. By bringing this aspect of historically normal capitalist development into clearer focus, the book clarifies the specific conditions and circumstances that enabled European economies to pursue a more broad based development following World War II and what prevented a similar outcome in the contemporary third world. It also clarifies the nature, spatial extent and circumstances of current globalising trends. Wide ranging and provocative, this book is required reading for advanced level students and scholars in development studies, development economics and political science. Books in Print, 1994

Issues and Challenges of Development Bikram Keshari Pattanaik, 2025-04-24. This book presents a balanced and accessible introduction to the core issues and challenges of development. It covers the key aspects of development in contemporary times, its relationship with agriculture, industrialization and services, sustainable and inclusive development, issues of marginalization and women's empowerment. This volume focuses on the uniquely multi dimensional challenges faced by developing countries which extend to the fields of economics, sociology, administration, politics and environment. The sectoral issues in development which comprise agriculture, industries and services sectors are useful subjects for enhancing economic growth and development of the nation states. Replete with case studies of different countries juxtaposed with the Indian scenario, this book caters to student needs across various disciplines. It will be useful to undergraduate and postgraduate students, researchers and teachers of development studies, economics, sociology, political science and public administration. It will be equally useful for administration officials of the central and state governments, policymakers, non governmental organization, NGO staff and corporate sector functionaries dealing with corporate social responsibilities.
