Legator, Sabrina F. Strawn, 2010-07-05

In the 1978 Love Canal toxic waste crisis, concerned citizens did a far better job of evaluating the health of the community than did the professionals of the New York Health Department, asserts Marvin Legator. In Chemical Alert: A Community Action Handbook, he and coeditor Sabrina Strawn offer a step-by-step guide that can be used by any lay person or citizens group to determine whether a health risk exists in their area. Writing for the general reader with no scientific expertise, environmental, medical, and legal professionals instruct communities on the organizational and investigative techniques that will produce a valid scientific case study. With these tools, citizens living near petrochemical plants or waste disposal areas or who may have simply noticed a high incidence of certain health problems in their community can determine for themselves whether a problem really exists and seek remediation. Given the reality that government agencies often lack the resources or the will to detect health hazards before they affect a community, an informed citizenry should be its own best environmental watchdog. Community Health Nursing in Canada Miriam Stewart, 1985

Community Health Workers: Describing the Breadth of Interventions and Contexts Across the World Mathieu Nacher, Nicolas Vignier, 2025-05-15 Social inequalities in health remain a challenging problem throughout the world. Despite a variety of specific contexts, vulnerable populations often present to care later with more advanced health problems and often greater fatality rates at younger ages. To remediate this, health services NGOs project personnel to liaise with the communities and serve as an intermediary between health professionals and patients from vulnerable populations. The denominations may vary: health mediation, cultural mediation, community health workers, Agente de Sa de, and sometimes entail different functions. Hard evidence on the impact of these mediators is often lacking because of the differences in contexts, specific health problems considered, and what mediation entails in different countries. In this Research Topic, we encourage submissions of articles that describe a range of experiences for different contexts where mediation, health mediation, cultural mediation, community health workers, Agente de Sa de programmes are deployed for public health issues. From this variety of experiences, we hope this special issue will constitute a precious repository of experiences and contexts that could be transferable and scalable interventions for others. The Focus and Limits of Community Health Nursing
