Colonial Production In Provincial Java:

Colonial Production in Provincial Java G. R. Knight, 1993 Local Foods Meet Global Foodways Benjamin Lawrance, Carolyn de la Peña, 2013-09-13 This book explores the intersection of food and foodways from global and local perspectives The collection contributes to interdisciplinary debates about the role and movement of commodities in the historical and contemporary world The expert contributions collectively address a fundamental tension in the emerging scholarly terrain of food studies namely theorizing the relationship between foodstuff production and cuisine patterns They explore a wide variety of topics including curry bread sugar coffee milk pulque Virginia ham fast food obesity and US ethnic restaurants Local Foods Meet Global Foodways considers movements in context and in doing so complicates the notions that food shapes culture as it crosses borders or that culture adapts foods to its neo local or global contexts By analysing the dynamics of contact between mobile foods and or people and the specific cultures of consumption they provoke these case studies reveal the process whereby local foods become global or global foods become local to be a dynamic co creative development jointly facilitated by humans and nature This volume explores a vast expanse of global regions such as North and Central America Europe China East Asia and the Pacific India sub Saharan Africa the Atlantic Ocean and the USSR Russia It includes a foreword by the eminent food scholar Carole Counihan and an afterword by noted theorist of cuisine Rachel Laudan and will be of great interest to students and researchers of history anthropology geography cultural studies and American studies This book is based on a special issue of Food and Foodways Commodities and Colonialism G. Roger Knight, 2013-03-15 Sugar yesterday was what oil is today a commodity of immense global importance whose tentacles reached deep into politics society and economy Indonesia s colonial era sugar industry is largely forgotten today except by a small number of regional specialists writing for a specialist audience During the period 1880 1942 covered by this book however the then Netherlands Indies was one of the world s very greatest producer exporters of the commodity How it contrived to do so is the story presented in this book Author G Roger Knight associate professor of history in the University of Adelaide has researched the history of Indonesia s sugar industry for more than twenty five years using unpublished archival sources in both the Netherlands and Indonesia His search has taken him into government records family histories and above all the extensive surviving papers of the Dutch sugar companies who operated in Indonesia during the late colonial era The result is a picture of the industry that offers important new insights into its history and its place in the framework of global commodity production over a period extending over three quarters of a century Sugarlandia Revisited Ulbe Bosma, Juan A. Giusti-Cordero, G. Roger Knight, 2007-10-01 Sugar was the single most valuable bulk commodity traded internationally before oil became the world s prime resource From the sixteenth to the eighteenth century cane sugar production was pre eminent in the Atlantic Islands the Caribbean and Brazil Subsequently cane sugar industries in the Americas were transformed by a fusion of new and old forces of production as the international sugar economy incorporated production areas in Asia the Pacific and Africa Sugar's global economic importance and its intimate relationship with colonialism offer an important context for probing the nature of colonial societies This book questions some major assumptions about the nexus between sugar production and colonial societies in the Caribbean and Southeast Asia especially in the second post 1800 colonial era Resisting Bondage in Indian Ocean Africa and Asia Edward A. Alpers, Gwyn Campbell, Michael Salman, 2007-01-24 This volume examines the various abolitionist impulses in the Indian Ocean World during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and assesses their efficacy within a context of a growing demand for labour resulting from an expanding international economy and European colonisation Narratives of Colonialism G. R. Knight, 2000 This book examines the interwoven issues of sugar Java and the Dutch from a broadly post colonial standpoint Sugar's history forms one of the crucial meta narratives of Western colonialism The history of the commodity is integral to that long association between cane sugar and the overseas expansion of the Western powers that had its origins in the Atlantic islands in the fifteenth century From there it spread to the New World and by the nineteenth century into parts of Asia and the Pacific The subsequent threat to cane sugar's pre eminence as a sweetener posed from the mid nineteenth century onward by sugar made from beet only served to further consolidate that connection The colonial metropolitan tie with its promise of protective tariffs and a secure home market became more than ever central to the industry's sustained development In associated mode colonial states renewed their efforts to subordinate land and labour to sugar's particular requirements Only in the second half of the twentieth century was the nexus formally broken leaving cane sugar as an often potent legacy of colonialism for the post colonial order The commercial production of cane sugar in Java dated from the first half of the seventeenth century It took place there until the early nineteenth century under the patronage of the Dutch East India Company and its successors The actual business of manufacture largely carried on by Chinese settlers was working in rather varied relationships with Javanese workers and peasant farmers During the mid nineteenth century decades however the industry was transformed It became the first of its kind in Asia successfully to adopt the panoply of steam steel and chemistry which formed the technological basis of industrialised sugar man International Review of Social History, 2004

Anthropologica, 1994 Includes reports of meetings of the institute Simmond's Colonial Magazine and Foreign Miscellany, 1844 The Louisiana Planter and Sugar Manufacturer, 1920 Unsettled Frontiers and Transnational Linkages Leo Douw, 1997 Pacific Affairs, 1995 The Sulu Zone James Francis Warren, 1998 This study focuses on a fascinating geographical cultural and historical border zone centered around the Sulu and Celebes seas between 1768 and 1898 and its complex interactions with China and the West Using freshly examined categories like piracy slavery and the State the author analyses the dynamics of a Malayo Muslim maritime state and its reactions to the world capitalist economy and the rapid advance of colonialism and modernity Asian Journal of Social Science, 2005 The Statesman's Year Book, 1902 The advanced class-book of modern geography, by W.
