Roberts, 2019-04-23 Published in 1963 The author gives a clear and accurate account of the immense development of France as a colonial power which in an incredibly short space of time was to control one third of Africa He drew his material not only from the scanty formal literature then available but also by carefully evaluating and selecting from large mass of controversial material to be found in deliberate propaganda parliamentary debates and the often suspect official documentation

Colonization Albert Galloway Keller, 1908 Race and the Crisis of Humanism Kay Anderson, 2012-12-06

The idea that humankind constituted a unity albeit at different stages of development was in the 19th century challenged with a new way of thinking The savagery of certain races was no longer regarded as a stage in their progress towards civilisation but as their permanent state What caused this shift In Kay Anderson s provocative new account she argues that British colonial encounters in Australia from the late 1700s with the apparently unimproved condition of the Australian Aborigine viewed against an understanding of humanity of the time that is as characterised by separation from nature precipitated a crisis in existing ideas of what it meant to be human This lucid intelligent and persuasive argument will be necessary reading for all scholars and upper level students interested in the history and theories of race critical human geography anthropology and Australian and environmental studies
