Desert Edens Philipp Lehmann, 2022-10-25 How technological advances and colonial fears inspired utopian geoengineering projects during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries From the 1870s to the mid twentieth century European explorers climatologists colonial officials and planners were avidly interested in large scale projects that might actively alter the climate Uncovering this history Desert Edens looks at how arid environments and an increasing anxiety about climate in the colonial world shaped this upsurge in ideas about climate engineering From notions about the transformation of deserts into forests to Nazi plans to influence the climates of war torn areas Philipp Lehmann puts the early climate change debate in its environmental intellectual and political context and considers the ways this legacy reverberates in the present climate crisis Lehmann examines some of the most ambitious climate engineering projects to emerge in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Confronted with the Sahara in the 1870s the French developed concepts for a flooding project that would lead to the creation of a man made Sahara Sea In the 1920s German architect Herman Sörgel proposed damming the Mediterranean in order to geoengineer an Afro European continent called Atlantropa which would fit the needs of European settlers Nazi designs were formulated to counteract the desertification of Eastern Europe and Central Asia Despite ideological and technical differences these projects all incorporated and developed climate change theories and vocabulary They also combined expressions of an extreme environmental pessimism with a powerful technological optimism that continue to shape the contemporary moment Focusing on the intellectual roots intended effects and impact of early measures to modify the climate Desert Edens investigates how the technological imagination can be inspired by pressing fears about the environment and civilization Climate and Society in Colonial Mexico Georgina H. Endfield,2008-02-11 By considering three case study regions in Mexico during the Colonial era Climate and Society in Colonial Mexico A Study in Vulnerability examines the complex interrelationship between climate and society and its contemporary implications Provides unique insights on climate and society by capitalizing on Mexico's rich colonial archives Offers a unique approach by combining geographical and historic perspectives in order to comprehend contemporary concerns over climate change Considers three case study regions in Mexico with very different cultural economic and environmental characteristics Divine Work, Japanese Colonial Cinema and its Legacy Kate Taylor-Jones,2017-08-24 For many East Asian nations cinema and Japanese Imperialism arrived within a few years of each other Exploring topics such as landscape gender modernity and military recruitment this study details how the respective national cinemas of Japan's territories struggled under but also engaged with the Japanese Imperial structures Japan was ostensibly committed to an ethos of pan Asianism and this study explores how this sense of the transnational was conveyed cinematically across the occupied lands Taylor Jones traces how cinema in the region post 1945 needs to be understood not only in terms of past colonial relationships but also in relation to how the post colonial has engaged with shifting political alliances the opportunities for technological advancement and knowledge the promise of larger consumer markets and specific historical conditions of each decade Historical Geography ,2005 Interdisciplinary Measures Graham Huggan,2008 Where now for postcolonial studies That is the central question in this new volume from one of the field's most original thinkers Huggan's answer is interdisciplinarity and here he sets out a series of conversations between literary studies and other disciplines notably geography environmental studies history and anthropology Huggan aims to establish an alternative trajectory through the field of postcolonial literary cultural studies that is alert to similar kinds of work being done in and across other disciplines and reflects on possible futures for postcolonial studies that move beyond Environment and Planning ,2007 Our Earth's Changing Land: L-Y Helmut Geist,2006 Scientists predict that the environment over the next 100 years will be threatened by severe challenges the loss of biodiversity expected changes in world wide climate and decreasing amounts of arable land and potable water for an exploding human population All of these will greatly impact how the earth will be able to support life in the future And at the center of these global environmental changes are developments in land use Over the last 300 years and in particular the last 50 years the earth's land has been altered drastically as a result of increasing industrialization and urbanization worldwide as well as by changes in agricultural techniques in lands under cultivation These developments raise troubling questions about our future How will these changes affect the sustainability of certain types of land use How will they impinge upon critical regions like rainforests and deserts Will the earth be able to provide for the basic human needs of food shelter and water Performing Science, Producing
