Shelp, 1991-10-31 Some conferences produce proceedings others an inspiration to labor which finally leads to a published work Such has been the case with regard to this volume In 1984 the Center for Ethics Medicine and Public Issues held a conference with the title When are Competent Patients Incompetent with the support of the Texas Committee for the Humanities a state based program of the National Endowment for the Humanities Assistance was provided by both Baylor College of Medicine and the Institute of Religion This conference evoked a considerable interest in examining further the moral status of competency determinations in the clinical setting This interest is realized in this volume which now affords us an opportunity to thank all those individuals who made the conference possible only some of whom are acknowledged in this Preface In particular we wish to express our gratitude to Baruch A Brody Rebecca Dresser the Honorable Jerome Jones H Steven Moffic Margery W Shaw Eleanor Tinsley and Albert Van Heiden The volume took its shape through the labors of Earl Shelp and Mary Ann Gardell Cutter who inspired the further evolution of the papers presented at the conference and attracted contributions from individuals who had not attended Earl Shelp and Mary Ann Gardell Cutter have produced a volume following extensive reflection and dialogue they were ably assisted in the final preparation of the manuscript by Thomas J Bole III and George Khushf to whom special thanks are due

Competence to Consent Becky Cox White, 1994-09-16 Free and informed consent is one of the most widespread and morally important practices of modern health care competence to consent is its cornerstone In this book Becky Cox White provides a concise introduction to the key practical philosophical and moral issues involved in competence to consent The goals of informed consent respect for patient autonomy and provision of beneficent care cannot be met without a competent patient Thus determining a patient's competence is the critical first step to informed consent Determining competence depends on defining it yet surprisingly no widely accepted definition of competence exists White identifies nine capacities that patients must exhibit to be competent She approaches the problem from the task oriented nature of decision making and focuses on the problems of defining competence within clinical practice Her proposed definition is based on understanding competence as occurring in a special rather than a general context as occurring in degrees rather than at a precise threshold as independent of consequential appeals and as incorporating affective as well as cognitive capacities Combining both an ethical overview and practical guidelines this book will be of value to health care professionals bioethicists and lawyers

Ethics in Neurobiological Research with Human Subjects Adil E. Shamoo, 1996-08-01 The papers included in this book were presented at the Baltimore Conference on Ethics in 1995 The purpose of this conference was to bring together ethicists psychiatrists researchers family members consumers and representatives of government industry and academia to discuss the following issues History and Ethics of Neurobiological Research with Human Subjects Current Practices Informed Consent Government Oversight Institutional Review Boards and the Patient and Family Perspective Over the past 40 years there has been a significant increase in research on neurobiological disorders for basic scientific knowledge and to develop new treatment therapies This has led to significant advances in the treatment of schizophrenia manic depression and other disorders which have improved the lives of thousands Public attention has been raised recently over the potential vulnerability of patients with neurobiological disorders who participate in such research since these patients often s

Competence and Vulnerability in Biomedical Research Philip Bielby, 2008-09-16 Enhanced knowledge of the nature and causes of mental disorder have led increasingly to a need for the recruitment of cognitively vulnerable participants in biomedical research These individuals often fall into the grey area between obvious decisional competence and obvious decisional incompetence and as a result may not be recognised as having the legal capacity to make such decisions themselves At the core of the ethical debate surrounding the participation of cognitively vulnerable individuals in research is when if at all we should judge them decisionally and legally competent to consent to or refuse research participation on their own behalf and when they should be judged incompetent in this respect In this book the author develops a novel justificatory framework for making judgments of decisional competence to consent to biomedical research with reference to five groups of cognitively vulnerable individuals older children and adolescents adults with intellectual disabilities adults with depression adults with schizophrenia and adults with dementia including Alzheimer s disease Using this framework the author argues that we can make morally defensible judgments about the competence or incompetence of a potential participant to give contemporaneous consent to research by having regard to whether a judgment of competence would be more harmful to the generic rights of the potential participant than a judgment of incompetence The argument is also used to justify an account of supported decision making in research and applied to evaluate the extent to which this approach is evident in existing ethical guidelines and legal provisions The book will be of interest to bioethicists as well as psychiatrists and academic medical lawyers interested in normative questions raised by the concepts of competence and capacity
