Complementation Its Meanings And Forms Typological Studies In Language Vol 16:

Creoles, Their Substrates, and Language Typology Claire Lefebvre, 2011-01-01 Since creole languages draw their properties from both their substrate and superstrate sources the typological classification of creoles has long been a major issue for creolists typologists and linguists in general Several contradictory proposals have been put forward in the literature For example creole languages typologically pair with their superstrate languages Chaudenson 2003 with their substrate languages Lefebvre 1998 or even creole languages are alike Bickerton 1984 such that they constitute a definable typological class McWhorter 1998 This book contains 25 chapters bearing on detailed comparisons of some 30 creoles and their substrate languages As the substrate languages of these creoles are typologically different the detailed investigation of substrate features in the creoles leads to a particular answer to the question of how creoles should be classified typologically The bulk of the data show that creoles reproduce the typological features of their substrate languages This argues that creoles cannot be claimed to constitute a definable typological class

Passivization and Typology Werner Abraham, Larisa Leisiö, 2006-01-01 Is the passive a unified universal phenomenon The claim derived from this volume is that the passive if not universal has become unified according to function Language as a means of communication needs the passive or passive like constructions and sooner or later develops them based on other voices impersonal active middle reflexive specific semantic meanings such as adversativity or tense aspect categories stative perfect preterit Certain contributors review the passives in various languages and language groups including languages rarely discussed Another group of contributors takes a novel theoretical approach toward passivization within a broad typological perspective Among the languages discussed are Vedic Irish Mandarin Chinese Thai Lithuanian Mordvin and Nganasan next to almost all European languages Various theoretical frameworks such as Optimality Theory modern structuralist approaches Role and Reference Grammar cognitive semantics Distributed Morphology and case grammar have been applied by the different authors

Explaining Language Structure through Systems Interaction Zygmunt Frajzyngier, Erin Shay, 2003-11-27 This book proposes a framework for describing languages through the description of relationships among lexicon morphology syntax and phonology The framework is based on the notion of formal coding means the principle of functional transparency the notion of functional domains and the notion of systems interaction in the coding of functional domains The study is based on original analyses of cross linguistic data The fundamental finding of the study is that different languages may code different functional domains which must be discovered by analyzing the formal means available in each language The first part of the book proposes a methodology for discovering functional domains and the second part describes the properties of various functional domains The book presents new cross linguistic analyses of theoretical issues including agreement phenomena attributed to government nominal classification prerequisites for and implications of linear order coding and defining characteristics of lexical categories The study also contributes new analyses of specific problems in individual languages

Coordinating Constructions Martin

Haspelmath, 2004-07-29 This is the first book on coordinating constructions that adopts a broad cross linguistic perspective Coordination has been studied intensively in English and other major European languages but we are only beginning to understand the range of variation that is found world wide This volume consists of a number of general studies as well as fourteen case studies of coordinating constructions in languages or groups of languages Africa Iraqw Fongbe Hausa the Caucasus Daghestanian Tsakhur Chechen the Middle East Persian and other Western Iranian languages Southeast Asia Lai Karen Indonesian the Pacific Lavukaleve Oceanic Nl mwa and the Americas Upper Kuskokwim Athabaskan A detailed introductory chapter summarizes the main results of the volume and situates them in the context of other relevant current research

Non-nominative Subjects Peri Bhaskararao, Karumuri Venkata Subbarao, 2004-09-30 Volume 1 of Non nominative Subjects NNSs presents the most recent research on this topic from a wide range of languages from diverse language families of the world with ample data and in depth analysis A significant feature of these volumes is that authors with different theoretical perspectives study the intricate questions raised by these constructions Some of the central issues include the subject properties of noun phrases with ergative dative accusative and genitive case case assignment and checking anaphor antecedent coreference the nature of predicates with NNSs whether they are volitional or non volitional possibilities of control coreference and agreement phenomena These analyses have significant implications for theories of syntax and verbal semantics first language acquisition of NNSs convergence of case marking patterns in language contact situations and the nature of syntactic change

Typology of Resultative Constructions Vladimir P. Nedjalkov, Bernard Comrie, 1988-01-01 This volume originally published in Russian combines data from a wide range of languages meticulously analyzed with a sophisticated theoretical apparatus capable of isolating the most important syntactic and semantic parameters and of drawing those generalizations that are most significant from a cross linguistic perspective Many ideas which are at best only hinted at in earlier literature such as the precise relation among resultative perfect and stative or correlations between resultative and passive voice are here for the first time stated precisely and given a firm foundation by means of detailed exemplification from a wide range of languages

Studies in Language, 2000 Deconstructing Creole Umberto Ansaldi, Stephen Matthews, Lisa Lim, 2007-06-22 Deconstructing Creole is a collection of studies aimed at critically assessing the idea of creole languages as a homogeneous structural type with shared and peculiar patterns of genesis Following up on the critical discussion of notions of creole exceptionalism as historical and ideological constructs this volume tests the basic assumptions that underlie current attempts to present creole structure as a special type from typological as well as sociohistorical perspectives The sum of the findings presented here suggests that careful empirical investigation of input varieties and contact environments can explain the structural output without recourse to an exceptional genesis scenario Echoing calls to dissolve the notion of creolization as a special diachronic process this volume proposes that theoretically grounded approaches to the notions of simplicity complexity transmission etc do not warrant considering so called creole languages as a special synchronic type Colorado Research in Linguistics ,1994 Books in Series, 1876-1949 R.R. Bowker Company,1982 Books in Series ,1985 Vols for 1980 issued in three parts Series Authors and Working Papers in Linguistics ,1976 Complementation Evelyn N. Ransom,1986-01-01 This book presents a stage in the evolution of a theory of modality meanings and forms It covers exclusively complements There are two questions that this book addresses Can one find a small finite set of meanings which systematically underlies the enormous variety of meanings found in complements And can one make any predictions from this set of meanings about the variety of forms they take The answer to both questions is yes The author convincingly shows how a multiplicity of sentence meanings and forms can be accounted for by breaking down sentence meaning into a small set of modules and howing how these modules combine to express certain meanings and how complement forms are related to them and their combinations Clause Linkage in Cross-linguistic Perspective Volker Gast,Holger Diessel,2012 The volume is a collection of thirteen papers given at the Third Syntax of the World s Languages conference complemented with four additional papers as well as an introduction by the editors All contributions deal with clause combining focusing on one or both of the following two dimensions of analysis properties of the clauses involved types of dependency The studies are data driven and have a cross linguistic or typological orientation In addition to survey papers the volume contains in depth studies of particular languages mostly based on original data collected in recent field work
