Using Blogging to Impact Students' and Teachers' Attitudes Toward Writing in the Elementary Classroom Carol Lindley,2016 The purpose of this project was to introduce technology into my journal writing curriculum This project involved 26 third grade students in an elementary school setting I engaged my students in the writing process by introducing them to blogging with the Kidblog website I observed to see the ways blogging has the potential to increase my students desire to write and in turn become better writers Furthermore I hoped it would create a more positive outlook on writing for me as the teacher My goal was to show that using a new tool incorporating technology for a journal writing curriculum can be a fun process for students The studied showed through quantitative and qualitative data that blogging does have a positive impact on my students journal writing curriculum Additionally it was determined that through blogging I also experienced a positive writing curriculum experience I was more involved with the monitoring by viewing their entries online which allowed me to increase my own enjoyment of their writing by using this specific technology It was a beneficial study that demonstrated technology impacts a writing curriculum in the classroom for student and teacher alike

How to Write an Online Course Bobbi Linkemer,2013-10-04 How to Write an Online Course From concept to completion one step at a time is not intended to be an actual how to guide to developing an online course Rather it is a journal of one writing teacher s exploration of a new and better way to help aspiring authors write publish and promote their nonfiction books When I started blogging about my first tentative steps down the path of writing an online course it was not my intention to combine the posts into a book By the time I reached Blog 48 however I realized that these musings might be of help to others who are starting from scratch as I was There is a steep learning curve for the uninitiated For adult students who may be new to online learning their first experience may seem confusing and overwhelming until they learn their way around this unfamiliar terrain For educators writing and facilitating an online course requires lots of time knowledge of the subject matter learning styles presentation techniques and e learning technology as well as the psychology of keeping students interested in the material and motivated enough to remain in the course Sometimes that is the greatest challenge
