Winner, 2013-03-09 This ninth volume is one of the most ambitious in the Philosophy and Technology series Edited by technopolitical philosopher Langdon Winner it assembles an impressive collection of philosophers and political theorists to discuss one of the most important topics of the end of the twentieth century the bearing of technology in all its ramifications on the practice of democratic politics in the developed world When set beside the previous volume in the series Europe America and Technology the two together open a philosophical dialogue of great significance about the ways technology challenges democracy at its very roots Some philosophers think the attack is fatal Others are optimistic that democratic means can be discovered or invented for the control of technology Still others object to an optimism versus pessimism formulation of the issue But all agree that the issue is highly significant one that demands serious philosophical inquiry The Society for Philosophy and Technology was fortunate in being able to draw this group of writers to Bordeaux France in 1989 along with a large number of others whose contributions to the debate could not be included here It is equally fortunate to have chosen Langdon Winner as president when the time came to select the best of the papers to fashion this volume University of Delaware PAUL T      *106-2 Hearing: Online Profiling and Privacy, S.
