Librarianship as a Bridge to an Information and Knowledge Society in Africa Alli Mcharazo,Sjoerd Koopman,2008-11-03 Knowledge Management was the theme of the Standing Conference of Eastern Central and Southern

African Library and Information Associations SCECSAL XVII in 2006 This selection of conference papers provides a cross disciplinary approach to knowledge information and development and how the three together can mould a new and more informed society The challenge is to make our libraries more people centered and Afro centric not simply serving the interests of the elite and paying little attention to the plight of the less well off This needs to change with libraries becoming more inclusive and serving the needs of all These papers raise provocative questions and provide an insight into the struggle of information services in this part of Africa to be part of an emerging information and knowledge society

Social Justice and Library Work Stephen Bales, 2017-10-18 Although they may not have always been explicitly stated library work has always had normative goals Until recently such goals have largely been abstract they are things like knowledge creation education forwarding science preserving history supporting democracy and safeguarding civilization The modern spirit of social and cultural critique however has focused our attention on the concrete material relationships that determine human potentiality and opportunity and library workers are increasingly seeing the institution of the library as well as library work as embedded in a web of relations that extends beyond the library's traditional sphere of influence In light of this critical consciousness more and more library and information science professionals are coming to see themselves as change agents and front line advocates of social justice issues This book will serve as a guide for those library workers and related information professionals that disregard traditional ideas of library neutrality and static idealized conceptions of Western culture The book will work as an entry point for those just forming a consciousness oriented towards social justice work and will be also be of value to more experienced transformative library workers as an up to date supplement to their praxis Justifies the use of a variety of theoretical and practical resources for effecting positive change Explores the role of the librarian as change agents information response provided through social networks in six communities of varying size The book is based on an award winning study in which 543 women described their knowledge of the problem of woman abuse and what kinds of information resources would be helpful to an abused woman In the second phase of the study 179 interviews were conducted with service providers identified by these women as likely sources of help A comparison of the interviews demonstrates that the response of information delivery systems does not adequately meet the needs and expectations of those women who would seek such services The final chapters of the volume focus on the implications of this study for the design of social service systems
