Dams And Development A New Framework For Decisionmaking:

Dams and Development World Commission on Dams,2016-05-13 By the year 2000 the world had built more than 45 000 large dams to irrigate crops generate power control floods in wet times and store water in dry times Yet in the last century large dams also disrupted the ecology of half the world s rivers displaced tens of millions of people from their homes and left nations burdened with debt Their impacts have inevitably generated growing controversy and conflicts Resolving their role in meeting water and energy needs is vital for the future and illustrates the complex development challenges that face our societies The Report of the World Commission on Dams is the product of an unprecedented global public policy effort to bring governments the private sector and civil society together in one process provides the first comprehensive global and independent review of the performance and impacts of dams presents a new framework for water and energy resources development develops an agenda of seven strategic priorities with corresponding criteria and guidelines for future decision making Challenging our assumptions the Commission sets before us the hard rigorous and clear eyed evidence of exactly why nations decide to build dams and how dams can affect human plant and animal life for better or for worse Dams and Development A New Framework for Decision Making is vital reading on the future of dams as well as the changing development context where new voices choices and options leave little room for a business as usual scenario Dams and Development ,2000 Dams and Development World Commission on Dams,Drylands Programme,International Institute for Environment and Development,2001-01-01 Dams and Development (computer File) ,2000 Dams and Development World Commission on Dams,2000 Press kit consisting of one folder containing various handouts Dams and Development ,2001 Dams and Development World Commission on Dams,2000 Press kit consisting of one folder containing various handouts The Human Rights Fundaments of Conservation in the Context of the Extraction of Energy Resources María Augusta León Moreta,2015-06-17 Energy is the driving force of human development and economic growth The ceaseless demand for energy resources has triggered the development of extraction projects around the world This in turn has exerted a significant pressure on natural resources as well as on the environment Since the performance of human rights depends on the environment and on access to natural resources this Study aims to show the extent to which the negative environmental impact arising from extraction operations prevents the effective realization of human rights The analysis of substantive and procedural human rights in the light of the case law of international human rights courts provides all stakeholders involved in an energy extraction project with the tools and mechanisms to prevent environmental damage and to ensure the protection of human rights Making Sustainable Commitments ,2001-01-01 CD ROM includes full text of the Strategy as well as other relevant information The Large Dam Dilemma Pu Wang,Shikui Dong,James Lassoie,2013-10-18 Large dam construction has significant environmental and social impacts at different scales As the largest developing country in the world China has built about half of the world s large dams and more are expected to be built over the next two decades to meet the country's rapidly growing demand for energy. This book summarizes and updates information about the history, distribution, functions and impacts of large dams both globally and at China's national level. It then addresses the environmental and social economic impacts of large dams in China with particular emphasis on the impacts of large dams on relocated people and associated compensation policies. Lastly, it introduces an integrated ecological and socio-economic study conducted in areas affected by dams along the Upper Mekong River, China. This book has the following three goals. The first goal is to summarize and update information on large dams globally and at China's national level. Ch 2 We examine large dam problems from different perspectives ranging from their spatial and temporal distributions and their environmental and social impacts to discussions and debates centered on them. We also incorporate the results of an empirical investigation of the environmental and socio-economic impacts of large dams on the Upper Mekong River, China and draw conclusions out of the analysis. Chs 3-4 Our second goal is to provide an analysis framework to help understand the environmental and social economic impacts of dam construction and the resulting environmental degradations and social inequities at different scales. Chs 3-4 as well as to offer recommendations for mitigating these impacts within China's socio-political context. Ch 5 The significant environmental effects resulting from dam construction include damage to ecological integrity and loss of biological diversity. The most significant social consequences brought by dam projects are their negative impacts on relocated people. Our analysis framework provides approaches to help comprehensively understand these impacts. Our third goal is to provide clues and suggestions for further studies of large dam problems both globally and in China. Ch 5 The construction of large dams is proceeding rapidly in different parts of the world despite the heated debates on whether they should be built at all. The decision-making process related to building large dams involves considerations of economic viability, environmental sustainability and social equity. Therefore, interdisciplinary collaborations are required in large dam research and development projects in order to reconcile the interests of different stakeholders and avoid harming ecosystems, biodiversity and human welfare. Overall, we hope our book facilitates future examinations of large dams by providing summaries of existing data and research related to large dams and offering a framework for better understanding and analyzing their environmental and social impacts.

This book explores what this privatisation of global rule making means for democracy. Based on contemporary theoretical approaches to democratic global governance, it reconstructs three prominent rule making processes in the field of global sustainability politics the World Commission on Dams the Global Reporting Initiative and the Forest Stewardship Council The book argues that if designed properly private transnational rule making can be as democratic as intergovernmental rule making
