Brian Seibert's book gives us at last a full scale and lively history of its roots its development and its glorious achievements. An essential book. Robert Gottlieb, dance critic for The New York Observer and editor of Reading Dance: What the Eye Hears, not only tells you all you wanted to know about tap dancing, it tells you what you never realized you needed to know. And he recounts all this in an easygoing style providing vibrant descriptions of the dancing itself and illuminating commentary by those masters who could make a floor sing. Deborah Jowitt, author of Jerome Robbins: His Life His Theater His Dance and Time and the Dancing Image. Consuming Dance, Colleen T. Dunagan, 2018-05-04. Dance in TV advertisements has long been familiar to Americans as a silhouette dancing against a colored screen exhibiting moves from air guitar to breakdance tricks all in service of selling the latest Apple product. But as author Colleen T. Dunagan shows in Consuming Dance, the advertising industry used dance to market items long before iPods. In this book, Dunagan lays out a comprehensive history and analysis of dance commercials to demonstrate the ways in which the form articulates with, informs, and reflects U.S. culture. In doing so, she examines dance commercials as cultural products, looking at the ways in which dance engages with television, film, and advertising in the production of cultural meaning. Throughout the book, Dunagan interweaves semiotics, choreographic analysis, cultural studies, and critical theory in an examination of contemporary dance commercials while placing the analysis within a historical context. She draws upon connections between individual dance commercials and the discursive and production histories to provide a thorough look into brand identity and advertising's role in constructing social identities. The Nation and Athenæum, 1912.
