Richard Wright Keneth Kinnamon, 2006-03-13 African American writer Richard Wright 1908-1960 was celebrated during the early 1940s for his searing autobiography Black Boy and fiction Native Son. By 1947 he felt so unwelcome in his homeland that he exiled himself and his family in Paris. But his writings changed American culture forever and today they are mainstays of literature and composition classes. He and his works are also the subjects of numerous critical essays and commentaries by contemporary writers. This volume presents a comprehensive annotated bibliography of those essays, books, and articles from 1983 through 2003. Arranged alphabetically by author, within years are some 8320 entries ranging from unpublished dissertations to book-length studies of African American literature and literary criticism. Also included as an appendix are addenda to the author's earlier bibliography covering the years from 1934 through 1982. This is the exhaustive reference for serious students of Richard Wright and his critics. The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2005 American Book Publishing Record, 2003

Composed of more than 1100 signed biographical critical entries, this Encyclopedia serves as both guide and companion to the study and appreciation of American literature. A special feature is the topical article of which there are 70.

Haunting and the Educational Imagination Barbara Regenspan, 2014-11-27 In a time when it seems like we've run into the limits on what Marx, Dewey, and Freud might hold for liberatory critique, this peculiarly uplifting book seeks to identify some promising thinking and teaching practices especially for work in our contemporary corporate university of excellence. With auto-ethnography as a baseline for reflection on her personal teaching life in this troubling political era, as well as an insistence that all students are future teachers whether they seek formal work in classrooms or not, Barbara Regenspan selects insights descending from her horribly imperfect trinity: Marx, Dewey, and Freud to reevaluate what it means to have obligations to unknowable others in our complex and global reality. Drawing on an interdisciplinary cast of contemporary social theorists such as Avery Gordon, Deborah Britzman, Maxine Greene, Bill Readings, and Alain Badiou, this book traces hauntagogical thinking and related classroom practice: hauntagogy, pedagogy aimed to create wide awakeness through the unearthing of acts of historical and interpersonal hauntings. Balanced between critique and hope, Regenspan offers the field of Educational Studies, including teacher education but also higher education more generally, a way of conceiving of the classroom as a place where contradictions in discourses are mined with and for our students who will be future teachers in the formal or informal sense. Here is a view of what historical materialism might hold for the relationship between democracy and education and what that relationship means for new, wild conceptions of self, politics, and spirituality. Barbara Regenspan combines the personal, the political, and the educational in creative ways in this volume. In the process, she provides a number of important insights into the human complexities and necessary commitments involved in struggling toward an education that is worthy of its name Michael W Apple John Bascom Professor of Curriculum and Instruction and Educational Policy Studies University of Wisconsin Madison and author of Can Education Change Society So much of my experience as an American teacher fell into place while reading this book Regenspan never veers far from the pragmatic and personal realities of being an American educator right now grappling with indifference short sightedness and disillusionment of the system Her deft and often profound intellectual work is peppered with anecdotes both personal and pedagogical and these accounts of teaching and learning on the ground level make her case fierce and fresh Haunting and the Educational Imagination is politically humane and intellectually electrifying Tony Hoagland Professor of Creative Writing at the University of Houston National Book Award Finalist teacher of high school English teachers and author of Unincorporated Persons in the Late Honda Dynasty Cover design by Madison Kuhn      Critical Survey of Poetry: Holmes Frank Northen Magill,1992 Vol 8 includes guidelines to poetry explication
