Difference, Deviance, Threat? Ineke van der Valk, 2002 This book examines the political discourse on ethnic issues in the Netherlands and in France It was written to highlight the socially constructed character and social effects of this discourse and its different variants and expressions and thus offer perspectives for evolution and change The underlying conviction is that discourses and thus the beliefs and knowledge that they contain are historically specific phenomena that are constructed in communities in particular times and places. In other words, knowledge is not as objective as it sometimes pretends to be; it is affected by gender, class, ethno-cultural origin and the political affiliations of its producers. This book has been written for an international audience of academics, politicians, journalists, policymakers and members of social movements engaged in the development of truly diverse societies and interested in the role of politics in attaining such an objective. Ineke van der Valk is researcher at the Department of Discourse Studies, Faculty of Humanities, University of Amsterdam. Prior to researching, she worked as a community organizer with the migrant movement, the anti-racist movement and the human rights movement. She has published on the history of the migrant movement in the Netherlands, human rights in Morocco and the discourse on ethnic minorities in the Netherlands and France. She also works as a consultant and trainer in the field of diversity management.

The present volume deals with different issues related to discourse and communication from a cognitive and functional perspective. Some of the chapters focus on analysing different types of text such as advertisements, conversation tales and songs and multimodal texts. Others present a more theoretical approach to key aspects in the field like syntax, politeness, subjectivity and intersubjectivity.

Encyclopedia of Race and Ethnic Studies Ellis Cashmore, 2004-03. The book comprises essays each highlighting a particular word or term germane to the study of race and ethnic studies.

This volume explores the discursive nature of post-1989 social change in Central and Eastern Europe. Democracy Unrealized Okwui Enwezor, 2002. Recently, democracy has been the watchword for a range of disparate yet apparently convergent contestations and negotiations within the global order. Democracy Unrealized, detailing the results of Platform 1, the first of four conferences held in conjunction with Documenta 11, presents a context within which the interpretive and conceptual regimes surrounding democracy can be reargued against the claims of a neoliberal ideology. From this globalist viewpoint democracy described as an unfinished project requires no structural changes for it is complete in all its foundational features requiring only small technical adjustments and minor tinkering This is how the main Western democracies have seen themselves at best as incomplete implementations of equality and justice rather than as limited flawed dead ended and problematic In response to this presumption this book proceeds from the idea that realizing democracy is partly a matter of bringing to light what liberal democracy has promised but failed to deliver The emphasis here is on the potential for revision a reevaluation of values and the extension and creative transformation necessary to keep in step with 21st century globalizing processes This is democracy as an ever open essentially unfinishable project that in principle has fallen short of its ideals Discourses of Femininity? Amanda Haertling Thein,2005 Michigan State Journal of International Law ,2013

Crossroads of Language, Interaction, and Culture ,2002 Journal of Linguistics ,2001 Combating Racial Discrimination Erna Appelt,Monika Jarosch,2000-01-05 Xenophobia and racism are among the unsolved problems of our time Globalisation mass migration and unemployment as well as the need to invent new supranational identities create new problems of inclusion and exclusion The Uses of Argument Daniel Farr,Ontario Society for the Study of Argumentation,2005
