Data Construction And Data Analysis For Survey Research:

Data Construction and Data Analysis for Survey Research Raymond Kent, 2020-05-19 Based on the needs of business marketing and social science students this book provides an accessible and easy to follow guide to survey data analysis The book avoids the more usual statistics driven perspective Rather it provides an intuitive feel for handling survey data by emphasising that data analysis is more about understanding the research objectives what kinds of data have been collected how quantitative data were generated by the process of measurement how to create a data matrix and how to transform raw data before thinking about appropriate statistical calculations The author begins by considering what data are the different kinds of data that surveys generate and the tripartite format of all quantitative data The processes of measurement and the errors that may arise are carefully explained Coverage of the creation and analysis of a data matrix using SPSS is then provided The author then reviews what kinds of statistical procedure are required for what kinds of data and for what purposes The book concludes by giving a review of strategies for coping with all the kinds of practical problems that arise in survey research Reader friendly throughout Data Analysis A Guide to Market and Social Research provides numerous worked examples end of chapter questions and points for further discussion to help reinforce concepts learnt A data diskette containing the worked examples in SPSS is also provided in the back of the book Also available is a companion website with extra features to accompany the text please take a look by clicking below <http://www.palgrave.com/business/kent/index.asp>

Data Construction and Data Analysis for Survey Research Kent, Raymond A. Kent, 2001 Data Construction in Social Surveys Nicholas Bateson, 2025-07-11 Before the early 1980s much attention had been given in the social survey literature to the analysis and interpretation of data but much less to the problems of constructing the individual datum Yet without good work at datum level a good data set cannot be produced and without good data no useful analyses and interpretations may be made What do we mean by survey data What are good data and how do we recognise them Originally published in 1984 Nicholas Bateson tackles these questions and in doing so offers a redefinition of the validity of survey data and suggests a new approach or a more assertive formulation of an old approach to the testing of data for validity He specifies conditions that must be satisfied if survey data are to be called valid and brings out the implications of his ideas for the management of survey error This book then provides a basis for thinking about discussing and evaluating survey data It will be of value to survey researchers to users of survey data and to students of social science who encounter reports of surveys and need to understand the problems intrinsic to survey data Global Construction Data Stephen

Gruneberg, 2019-08-12 Global construction data is vital for contractors governments international organisations policy makers academic researchers and statisticians As the global population of the world expands the sustainability of the built environment raises the political agenda and the need to manage infrastructure and buildings in both urban and rural contexts becomes ever more pressing How much more can the built environment grow and how can it be managed sustainably This edited volume addresses how we can find a possible way through the inconsistencies between national construction data sets to devise a consistent approach to national construction data to further the global sustainability agenda and inform policy making This search begins in Part I which looks at the methods and definitions used in construction statistics in different countries Part II considers examples of different types of construction data from the cost of materials measuring work on high rise buildings and existing stock In Part III the authors consider construction data internationally beginning with the problem of comparing data in different countries using exchange rates and purchasing power parities PPPs comparing innovation processes in different countries and looking at the provision of building design internationally In Part IV the international theme is continued by comparing accounting practices and company performance in different countries and concludes with an international comparison of construction industries This book raises awareness of the significance of the construction industry globally and the importance of data to measure it It informs the discussion of the best ways of handling the consequences of policies affecting the built environment and the effect of the built environment on the rest of the economy and society It is essential reading for international economists construction industry consultants policy makers construction statisticians and academics
