Database Programming Languages Sophie Cluet,Rick Hull,2014-10-05 This book constitutes the thoroughly refereed post workshop proceedings of the 6th International Workshop on Database Programming Languages DBPL 6 held in Estes Park Colorado USA in August 1997 The 20 revised full papers presented have gone through two rounds of reviewing and selection Also included are two invited talks the transcription of a panel discussion and an introductory survey by the volume editors The papers address all current aspects of database programming languages in particular spatial databases typing query languages for new applications views expressive power aggregate queries cooperative work and transactions

Database Programming Languages ,2004 The papers in this volume represent the technical program of the 9th Biennial Workshop on Data Bases and Programming Languages DBPL2003 which was held on September 6 8 2003 in Potsdam Germany The workshop meets every two years and is a well established forum for ideas that lie at the intersection of database and programming language research DBPL 2003 continued the tradition of excellence initiated by its predecessors in Rosco Finestre 1987 S ishan Oregon 1989 Nafplion Argolida 1991 Manhattan New York 1993 Gubbio Umbria 1995 Estes Park Colorado 1997 Kinloch Rannoch Scotland 1999 and Frascati Rome 2001

The program committee selected 14 papers out of 22 submissions and invited two contributions

The 16 talks were presented over three days in seven sessions In the invited talk Jennifer Widom presented the paper CQL a Language for Continuous Queries over Streams and Relations coauthored by Arvind Arasu and Shivnath Babu

While a lot of research has been done recently on query processing over data streams CQL is virtually the first proposal of a query language on streams that is a strict extension of SQL The language is structured around a simple yet powerful idea it has two distinct data types relations and streams with well defined operators for mapping between them Window specification expressions such as sliding windows map streams to relations while operators such as insert stream delete stream and relation stream map relations to streams by returning at each moment in time the newly inserted tuples the deleted tuples or a snapshot of the entire relation The numerous examples in this paper make a convincing case for the power and usefulness of CQL

International Workshop on Database Programming Languages Object Models and Languages DBPL 4 took place in Manhattan New York City 30 August 1 September 1993 The areas of interest and the format of DBPL 4 focused on the integration of programming languages object models type systems and database systems As in the previous DBPL workshops the setting was informal allowing the participants to actively discuss and argue about the ideas presented in the talks The comments and remarks made by the participants during and after the presentations were taken into account in the preparation of the final versions of the papers The result we believe is a set of excellent papers The DBPL sequence is closely related to the sequence of International Workshops on Persistent Object Systems POS first started in 1985 While the DBPL workshops focus on language and model issues the POS workshops have focused on implementation issues thus the two sequences complement each other Many researchers participate in both workshop series The eight sessions of the technical program of DBPL 4 were as follows 1 Bulk types and their query languages two sessions 2 Object models and languages 3 Data types with order 4 Mechanisms to support persistence reflection and extensibility 5 Query optimization and integrity constraints 6 Logic based models 7 Implementation and performance issues
