Latter-day Saint Courtship Patterns Mary Jane Woodger, Thomas B. Holman, Kristi A. Young, 2007-08-31 For years many have observed the notion that there are a number of distinctive differences in the mate selection process of Latter day Saints LDS and other North Americans Because of the strongly held values espoused by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter day Saints in regard to marriage within the larger picture of American cultural patterns there are many Mormon sub cultural differences Unique LDS culture patterns have been found to be an expression of a young adult LDS Church member's paradigms of life's meanings. This book combines cutting edge scholarly research with items of popular interest analyzing and summarizing data and research already collected. Making commitments is vital to LDS life and affects the mate selection process. Parental attitudes, values, and interpretations of accepted codes within the Church have developed into traditions that constitute a complex Mormon lore. Therefore, the book's approach is a detailed comprehensive report of the author's research that uniquely incorporates folklore data. This volume defines the formation of heterosexual relationships culminating in marriage of LDS couples from 1960 to 2005 and compares this pattern to that of other cultural courtships. The study will assist future researchers in their analysis of the family and have a direct influence on further exploration of what constitutes successful LDS families. Marriage and Family J.

Norval D. Glenn, Elizabeth Marquardt, 2001-01-01. An 18 month study of the attitudes and values of today's college women regarding sexuality, dating, courtship, and marriage involving in depth interviews with a diverse group of 62 college women on 11 campuses supplemented by 20 minute telephone interviews with a nationally representative sample of 1,000 college women yielded several major findings. Marriage appears to be a life goal for the majority of these women and most would like to meet a spouse while at college. However, there are important aspects of the college social scene that appear to undermine the likelihood of achieving the goal of a successful future marriage. For example, since 1980, women have outnumbered men attending college. Relationships between college men and women today are often characterized by either too little commitment or too much leaving women with few opportunities to explore the marriage worthiness of a variety of men before settling into a long term commitment. Hooking up, a distinctive sex without commitment interaction, is widespread on campuses and profoundly influences campus culture, even though a minority of students engage in this practice. The term hooking up is ambiguous and could mean anything from kissing to sex. Dating has multiple meanings for college women today ranging from being in an exclusive relationship to casual friendship. College women find it difficult to know when college men consider themselves in a committed relationship There are few widely recognized social norms on college campuses that define courtship and social expectations adult involvement and guidance about relationships are lacking for most college students Some recommendations are made to support the creation of socially prescribed rules and norms to guide young people toward marriage Four appendixes discuss the methodology list the members of the research team contain the interview guide and present the national survey questionnaire Contains 3 figures and 14 endnotes SLD Diversity in Families Maxine Baca Zinn,D.
