Productive, Not Polarizing Heather Kenyon Casey, This book co published with the National Science Teaching Association NSTA provides the support that K 12 teachers and students need for more complex science investigations Drawing on research that informs effective literacy practices this book pushes back on singular ideologies programs and divisive rhetoric and instead embraces an inclusive perspective for supporting literacy development and learning Readers are encouraged to move beyond debates that divide us and look toward the hard but necessary work of building the partnerships needed to support all students Productive Not Polarizing begins with a focus on community literacies and then describes effective literacy practices across grade levels. Designed for a wide audience, it will assist educators, families, and community partners to have informed conversations about what literacy instruction and learning involves. Every chapter includes a Community Snapshot describing a real-life scenario in which a partnering benefits students, an Ideas for Action section that can be adapted to your own context, reflection questions, and a list of helpful resources that include potential sources of funding. Book Features: An accessible, positive discussion of literacy research and practices for educators, families, and community partners; A response to increasingly contentious conversations about literacy instruction; Guidance to help educators engage with key community partners and stakeholders such as administrators, families, childcare centers, afterschool programs, and local school boards; Opportunities to consider the role of teacher education and professional development in supporting school-community conversations; Ready-to-use resources such as reproducible materials and community planning and event guides.

Engaging Audience M. Elizabeth Weiser, Brian Fehler, Angela Marta González, 2009

This collection of essays about audience awareness from professionals in the English, public relations, and writing fields is based on the latest work of scholars Lisa Ede and Andrea Lunsford. This collection builds upon Lisa Ede and Andrea Lunsford's groundbreaking work to examine the rhetorical concept of audience as it relates to twenty-first-century teaching and learning. Editors M. Elizabeth Weiser, Brian M. Fehler, and Angela M. González bring together compositionists from the departments of English, communications, public relations, and writing to offer insights that serve as a guide for incorporating audience awareness into the contemporary classroom.

Contributors engage in a dialogue with Ede and Lunsford's previously published essays Audience Addressed Audience Invoked The Role of Audience in Composition Theory and Pedagogy and Representing Audience Successful Discourse and Disciplinary Critique as well as their new essay Among the Audience On Audience in an Age of New Literacies written especially for this collection. Through these engagements contributors offer insights on audience from divergent perspectives: composition pedagogy, new media studies, service learning and professional writing, diversity and rhetorical and literary theory that establish a third category in the addressed/invoked binary: an audience updated that takes various professional and cultural forms but is most evidently audience interacting.
