Supplement ,2002 Setting a New Agenda for Student Engagement and Retention in Historically Black Colleges and Universities Prince, Charles B. W.,Ford, Rochelle L.,2016-06-27 As more Americans are attending college historically black colleges and universities HBCUs are now in a position where they must directly compete with other institutions While other colleges and universities might have more resources and stronger infrastructures HBCUs provide better opportunities to meet the needs of students of color Setting a New Agenda for Student Engagement and Retention in Historically Black Colleges and Universities explores the innovations that HBCUs can enact to better serve and prepare the next generation of African American leaders and to be more competitive in the higher education landscape As students need different forms of support throughout their academic career it becomes necessary to engage them through mentorship programming and classroom management This book is a valuable resource for educators and administration at HBCUs sociologists policy makers and students studying education science and administration American Educational Research Association

Annual Meeting Program American Educational Research Association,2006 Annual Meeting Program American Educational Research Association,2008 Identity, Learning, and the Liberal Arts Ned Scott Laff,2005-10-19 This book argues that we must foster a conversation between those in liberal studies and those who work with student development theory This conversation reveals that the skills of academic inquiry inherent in liberal learning are the skills of personal development inherent in student development theory This issue tackles the ideas of liberal learning and outlines a pedagogical direction to realize them Series ed The Journal Book for Teachers of At-risk College Writers Susan Gardner,Toby Fulwiler,1999 Educators across the grades and across the curriculum have long recognized the usefulness of journals to help student writers But what about basic writers learning disabled students and nontraditional and returning students One of the values of journal writing is its accessibility yet no one has seemed to consider how at risk students might benefit With this new collection the first of its kind Susan Gardner and Toby Fulwiler provide much needed advice The authors of these essays are all experienced teachers of at risk writers both at two and four year colleges They know the at risk students they are describing Some readers will recognize the students as basic writers in basic writing courses Others will find chapters written by writing center directors who serve a variety of students we might term as at risk There are also chapters from educators who work specifically with Deaf students ADHD students and learning disabled students Each one describes uses of the journal and the adjustments to the assignment that make the journal such an accessible and instructive writing genre

Language, Interaction and National Identity Stephen Hester, William Housley, 2002 Employing a previously neglected perspective on the construction and communication of national identity this book addresses the lived reality of these identities and explores the level of situated talk and interaction in which they are actually expressed and used
