dynamic paths that make cities converge to a stationary equilibrium with large fractions of remote workers Using cell phone based mobility data for the U S we document that although most cities experienced similar reductions in CBD trips during the pandemic trips in the largest cities have stabilized at levels that are only about 60% of pre pandemic levels In contrast smaller cities have on average returned to pre pandemic levels House price panel data by city show consistent changes in house price CBD distance gradients We estimate the model for 274 U S cities and show that cities that have stabilized at a large fraction of remote work are much more likely to have parameters that result in multiple stationary equilibria Our results imply welfare losses in these cities that average 2.7%
