Early Muslim Dogma A Source Critical Study:

Early Muslim Dogma Michael Cook, Michael Allan Cook, 2003-12-04 This study presents a new source for the early history of the Murji'a and argues new positions regarding the early doctrine and politics of the movement. It investigates the authenticity and dating of sources issues fundamental for the history of Muslim dogma and early Muslim history. Early Muslim Dogma Michael Cook, 1981-07-23 The key sources for the reconstruction of the early history of Muslim dogma are a group of texts ascribed to authors of the late first century of the Hijra. These texts bear on two major doctrinal controversies: the Murji'ite and the Qadarite raising issues related on the one hand to the judgement of the events of the First Civil War and on the other to the dilemma of predestination and free will. Part I and II of this study present a new source for the early history of the Murji'a and argue new positions regarding the early doctrine and politics of the movement. Parts III and IV are an investigation of the authenticity and dating of this and half a dozen similar sources; the issues thereby raised are fundamental for the history of Muslim dogma and have ramifications for the study of early Muslim history at large. The book also discusses the origin of particular Muslim doctrines in the religious and intellectual trends of late antiquity.

Patronate And Patronage in Early And Classical Islam Monique Bernards, John Abdallah Nawas, 2005 This book deals with patronate and patronage of early and classical Islam. Though Webster's Third has the term mawla, the concept remains very difficult to come to grips with. Fourteen contributions by renowned scholars analyze the social and cultural phenomenon of wal from various angles. As a whole, the book conveys what we presently know about patronate and patronage during the first four centuries of Islam. Inasmuch as the contributors have used different methods from a close rereading of primary sources to the application of social theory and quantitative analysis, the book additionally offers an overview of methodologies current in the field of Islamic Studies. Medieval Jerusalem and Islamic Worship Amikam Elad, 2021-12-06 Medieval Jerusalem and Islamic Worship treats of the holy sites of the Muslims in Jerusalem and the ceremonies and pilgrimage to these places during the early Muslim period. It is based primarily on primary Arabic sources, some of which have been used for the first time. Emphasis is given to the works of Literature in Praise of Jerusalem, an important and unique source for the history and topography of the city. Many of the topics in this book have never been dealt with before, e.g. the detailed description of the first known guide for the Muslim pilgrim to Jerusalem that dates from the 11th century and the supplementary discussion of the 16th century guide. Both guides are still in manuscript and have never been published.

Muhammad's Grave Leor Halevi, 2011 In this probing study of death rites, Leor Halevi plays prescriptive texts against material culture, advancing a new way of interpreting the origins of Islam. He shows how religious scholars produced codes of funerary law to create new social patterns in the cities of Arabia, Mesopotamia, and the eastern Mediterranean. They distinguished Islamic from Christian, Jewish, and Zoroastrian rites, and they changed the way men and women interacted publicly and privately. Each chapter explores a different layer of human interaction following the movement of the corpse.

from the deathbed to the grave Highlighting economic and political factors as well as key religious and sexual divisions Halevi forges a fascinating link between the development of funerary rites and the efforts of an emerging religion to carve its own distinct identity Muhammad's Grave is a groundbreaking history of the rise of Islam and the roots of contemporary Muslim attitudes toward the body and society Rituals of Islamic Monarchy Andrew Marsham, 2009-05-31 This fascinating history explores the ceremony of the oath of allegiance to the caliph from the time of the Prophet Muhammad until the fragmentation of the caliphate in the late ninth and tenth centuries The study of royal rituals of accession and succession in Christian Rome Byzantium and the early Medieval West has generated an extensive literature This has however remained unexplored in scholarship on the Islamic world This book redresses that by examining the ceremonial of accession to the caliphate in early Islam covering the following aspects of the subject The place of ritual in political practice Changes and continuities in that practice The problem of how best to understand accounts of ritual It also offers a contribution to major current debates in Islamic history the development of Arab Muslim identity and the formation of the Islamic state It presents an accessible discussion of royal ritual in early Islam which situates developments in the Islamic world in a late antique and early medieval context adding an important comparative context to the book Studies in Early Muslim Jurisprudence Norman Calder, 1993 This book offers a coherent theory of the origins and early development of Islamic law The author grounds his argument in a series of representative passages from the earliest juristic works many of them translated here for the first time Succeeding chapters demonstrate the creativity of early Muslim civilization in literary forms juristic norms and hermeneutic technique Drawing on the tradition of Islamic scholarship represented by such names as Ignaz Goldziher Joseph Schacht and John Wansborough Calder is sensitive also to the development of methodology and technique in the parallel fields of Biblical and Rabbinical Studies Grounding all his major generalizations in precise textual detail he evokes the social political and intellectual concerns of Muslim civilization in its most formative period Calder demonstrates that many of the usual connotations are not appropriate to the understanding of early Muslim jurisprudence The surviving texts constitute and lively record of how the early Muslim community created the major symbols of its own identity The Ḥadīth: Narrative, context, and content Mustafa Akram Ali Shah, 2010 The Prophetic traditions of Islam which are commonly referred to as the hadiths literally reports preserve the sum and substance of the utterances deeds directives and descriptive anecdotes connected with the life of the Prophet Muhammad and his Companions Together with the Qur'an the hadiths provide the religion of Islam with its principal scriptural sources The collection features an accessible and informative introduction which presents an outline of the significance of the hadiths within the religious tradition while also reviewing classical scholarship devoted to the literature of the traditions moreover the introduction decisively sets into context the academic debates and arguments which are fleshed out in the articles selected It also charts developments in the academic study of hadiths summing up the current state of the field and features a detailed bibliography listing primary classical sources germane to
