Dispute Resolution In New Zealand:

Dispute Resolution in New Zealand Peter Spiller, 2007 This is the only book that reflects the range of dispute resolution processes in New Zealand It presents the main features of each dispute resolution process and gives guidance on skills which can be applied All chapters have been fully revised and updated and each chapter concludes with a practical exercise which is used to illustrate and apply the information presented Chapters 1 2 3 and 9 have been rewritten by new authors to reflect new developments and perspectives Chapter 4 on Investigation is a completely new chapter Investigative processes are increasingly being seen as a specialist area of dispute resolution and are particularly important in dealing with disciplinary matters The book is directed to those involved in dispute resolution processes in New Zealand and is aimed at enhancing the knowledge and the skills required to make the most effective use of the dispute resolution options available Dispute Resolution in New Zealand 2nd edition is an essential resource for law students and for qualified lawyers who are increasingly being required to address the full range of dispute resolution processes available

Intercultural Dispute Resolution in Aboriginal Contexts Catherine Edith Bell, Catherine Bell, David Joshua Kahane, 2004 There is a growing interest in alternative dispute resolution ADR as scholars and practitioners seek more effective context sensitive approaches to conflict These essays provide a balanced view of ADR with examples of efforts at dispute resolution involving Inuit and Arctic peoples

Dispute Resolution in New Zealand Peter Spiller, 1999 Dispute Resolution in New Zealand provides a comprehensive overview of the main forms of dispute resolution operating in New Zealand namely negotiation mediation arbitration and litigation Relevant techniques and approaches are explored and evaluated as are the ethical considerations and legal rules where applicable The book also explores the range of dispute resolution processes established through statute law and contains valuable chapters on Maori and cross cultural perspectives

Mediation Klaus J. Hopt, Felix Steffek, 2018-12-13 Mediation provides an attractive alternative to resolving disputes through court proceedings Mediation promises just results in the interest of all parties concerned a reduction of the court caseload and cost savings for the parties involved as well as for the treasury The European Directive on Mediation has given mediation in Europe new momentum by establishing a common framework for cross border mediation Beyond Europe many states have tried in recent years to answer the question whether and if so how mediation should be regulated at a national and international level The aim of this book is to promote the understanding and discussion of regulatory issues by presenting comparative research on mediation It describes and analyses the law and practice of mediation in twenty two countries Europe is represented by chapters on mediation in Austria Bulgaria England France Germany Greece Hungary Ireland Italy the Netherlands Norway Poland Portugal and Spain The world beyond Europe is analysed in chapters on mediation in Australia Canada China Japan New Zealand Russia Switzerland and the USA Against this background further chapters on fundamental issues identify possible regulatory models and discuss central principles of mediation law and practice In particular the work considers harmonisation and diversity in the law of mediation as well as the economic and constitutional problems associated with privatising civil justice To the extent available empirical research is used as a point of reference in the critical analysis

Alternative Dispute Resolution - Mediation - A to Z of New Zealand Law , Rules, Regulations and By-laws Under New Zealand Statutes New Zealand,1915 Collective Bargaining for Police and Other Essential Services

Giuseppe Carabetta,2024-10-14 This book examines how collective bargaining disputes are resolved among police and essential service employees In Australia as in other common law countries police and other highly essential employees such as fire fighters and ambulance officers have long had access to a form of binding arbitration to settle collective bargaining disputes The traditional arbitration based system in Australia has however been replaced in recent decades with a marked based collective bargaining system The current Fair Work system restricts access to arbitration favouring collective bargaining based on the parties prerogative to make their own agreements and supported by a limited right to industrial action including strikes during bargaining Yet police officers particularly are subject to considerable restraints on any entitlement to participate in industrial action The problem is that with limited access to arbitration and an especially limited right to industrial action intractable disputes may continue indefinitely without any impasse breaking process to prevent the flow on harms of long running police disputes This raises the essential question underpinning this study what form of dispute resolution system is appropriate to protect both the legitimate industrial interests of police officers and the community s interest in the uninterrupted provision of essential policing services The author in his extensive field work research and his study of international case studies has developed a useful model for mandatory interest arbitration among police and other essential services personnel The lessons and recommendations in the book offer insights for essential services labour law in Australia and overseas The Mediation Process Christopher W. Moore,2014-04-07 The Fourth Edition of a seminal work in the field of mediation and conflict resolution For almost thirty years conflict resolution practitioners faculty and students have depended on The Mediation Process as the all inclusive guide to the discipline The most comprehensive book written on mediation this text is perfect for new and experienced conflict managers working in any area of dispute resolution family community employment business environmental public policy multicultural or international This is the expert s guide and the Fourth Edition has been expanded and revised to keep pace with developments in the field It includes new resources that will promote excellence in mediation and help disputants reach durable agreements and enhance their working relationships Includes expanded information on the latest approaches for providing mediation assistance Features comprehensive guidelines for selecting the right strategy for both common and unique problems Utilizes updated contemporary case studies of all types of disputes Offers expanded coverage of the growing field and practice of intercultural and international mediation Mediation in New Zealand Grant Morris, Annabel Shaw, 2018-04-30 Mediation in New Zealand is a significant new text which is designed to be specifically relevant to New Zealand's mediation professionals, academics and students. In achieving this objective, authors Grant Morris and Annabel Shaw explore New Zealand's mediation landscape from four different but interconnected perspectives. The first six chapters examine New Zealand mediation's historical and theoretical context. Chapters 7 to 9 provide a skills-based analysis of mediation practice and provide practical advice for mediators and mediation advocates. This is followed in chapters 10 to 13 by a systematic overview of prominent mediation specialist areas including the first evidence-based analysis of commercial mediation in New Zealand. The final chapters examine professional issues relating to mediation such as accreditation, confidentiality and the rise of online dispute resolution. These features of Mediation in New Zealand ensure that the book will be a standard reference work for professional mediators, lawyers representing clients in mediation parties, to mediation professionals who have some engagement with mediation, academics, law and ADR students and those seeking to become accredited mediators.
