Distributions Of Correlation Coefficients:

Distributions of Correlation Coefficients Hoben Thomas, 2012-12-06 An important problem in personnel psychology namely the psychometric problem known as validity generalization is addressed in this volume From a statistical point of view the problem is how to make statements about a population correlation coefficient based on inferences from a collection of sample correlation coefficients The first part of the book examines the largely ad hoc procedures which have been used to determine validity generalization The second part develops a new model formulated from the perspective of finite mixture theory and in addition illustrates its use in several applications NBS Special Publication ,1970 An Author and Permuted Title Index to Selected Statistical Journals Brian L.
