Distributed Geolibraries Spatial Information Resources Summary Of A Workshop:

Distributed Geolibraries National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Panel on Distributed Geolibraries, 1999-07-01 A distributed geolibrary is a vision for the future It would permit users to quickly and easily obtain all existing information available about a place that is relevant to a defined need It is modeled on the operations of a traditional library updated to a digital networked world and focused on something that has never been possible in the traditional library the supply of information in response to a geographically defined need It would integrate the resources of the Internet and the World Wide Web into a simple mechanism for searching and retrieving information relevant to a wide range of problems including natural disasters emergencies community planning and environmental quality A geolibrary is a digital library filled with geoinformation information associated with a distinct area or footprint on the Earth's surface and for which the primary search mechanism is place A geolibrary is distributed if its users services metadata and information assets can be integrated among many distinct locations This report presents the findings of the Workshop on Distributed Geolibraries Spatial Information Resources convened by the Mapping Science Committee of the National Research Council in June 1998 The report is a vision for distributed geolibraries not a blueprint Developing a distributed geolibrary involves a series of technical challenges as well as institutional and social issues which are addressed relative to the vision Integrating Geographic Information Systems into Library Services: A Guide for Academic Libraries

Abresch, John, Hanson, Ardis, Heron, Susan Jane, Reehling, Peter J., 2008-04-30 With the onslaught of emergent technology in academia libraries are privy to many innovative techniques to recognize and classify geospatial data above and beyond the traditional map librarianship As librarians become more involved in the development and provision of GIS services and resources they encounter both problems and solutions Integrating Geographic Information Systems into Library Services A Guide for Academic Libraries integrates traditional map librarianship and contemporary issues in digital librarianship within a framework of a global embedded information infrastructure addressing technical legal and institutional factors such as collection development reference and research services and cataloging metadata as well as issues in accessibility and standards Handbook of Research on Digital Libraries: Design, Development, and Impact Theng, Yin-Leng, Foo,

Technology for Digital Libraries Traugott Koch, Ingeborg T. Solvberg, 2004-02-26 Welcome to ECDL 2003 and to these conference proceedings featuring all the papers presented at the 7th European Conference on Research and Advanced Technology for Digital Libraries Following Pisa 1997 Heraklion 1998 Paris 1999 Lisbon 2000 Da stad 2001 and Rome 2002 ECDL 2003 in Trondheim reaches some of the northernmost shores of the continent Being the seventh in an annual series of conferences represents for better and for worse a considerable tradition in the fast changing world of digit library related research and development It is still a difficult and slow job to change traditional forms and formats of communication at and related to scientific conferences and also to change participants expectations Yet each new conference builds upon the topics and communities involved in previous events and inherits the commitment to quality established by its predecessors Each year ECDL has to live up to its role of being the major European forum focusing on digital libraries and associated technical practical and social issues bringing diverse disciplines and application communities together There are still challenges in this respect ahead of us but the quality and range of papers and other contributions combined with opportunities for debate should ensure that ECDL 2003 sets high standards for the future

Georeferencing Linda L. Hill, 2006 An introduction to the principles of unified georeferencing which uses placename and geospatial referencing interchangeably across all types of information storage and retrieval systems Georeferencing relating information to geographic location has been incorporated into today's information systems in various ways We use online services to map our route from one place to another science business and government increasingly use geographic information systems GIS to hold and analyze data Most georeferenced information searches using today s information systems are done by text query But text searches for placenames fall short when for example a place is known by several names or by none In addition text searches don t cover all sources of geographic data maps are traditionally accessed only through special indexes filing systems and agency contacts data from remote sensing images or aerial photography is indexed by geospatial location mathematical coordinates such as longitude and latitude In this book Linda Hill describes the advantages of integrating placename based and geospatial referencing introducing an approach to unified georeferencing that uses placename and geospatial referencing interchangeably across all types of information storage and retrieval systems After a brief overview of relevant material from cognitive psychology on how humans perceive and respond to geographic space Hill introduces the reader to basic information about geospatial information objects concepts of geospatial referencing the role of gazetteer data the ways in which geospatial referencing has been included in metadata structures and methods for the implementation of geographic information retrieval GIR Georeferencing will be a valuable reference for librarians archivists scientific data managers information managers designers of online services and any information professional who deals with place based information
