Diversity And Taxonomy Of Tropical Flowering Plants:

Diversity and Taxonomy of Tropical Flowering Plants Philip Mathew, 1998 Flowering Plants · Dicotyledons Joachim W. Kadereit, 2012-12-06 In this volume 24 flowering plant families comprising a total of 911 genera are treated. They represent the asterid order Lamiales except for Acanthaceae including Avicenniaceae which will be included in a later volume. Although most of the constituent families of the order have been recognized as being closely related long ago, the inclusion of the families Byblidaceae, Carlemanniaceae and Plocospermataceae is the result mainly of recent molecular systematic research. Keys for the identification of all genera are provided and likely phylogenetic relationships are discussed extensively. To facilitate the recognition of relationships, families are cross referenced where necessary. The wealth of information contained in this volume makes it an indispensable source for anybody in the fields of pure and applied plant sciences.

Diversity and Classification of Flowering Plants Armen Leonovich Takhtadzhian, 1997 The culmination of more than fifty years of research by the foremost living expert on plant classification, Diversity and Classification of Flowering Plants is an important contribution to the field of plant taxonomy. In the last decade the system of classifying plants has been thoroughly revised. Instead of describing every individual family, Takhtajan includes descriptions in keys to families which he calls descriptive keys. The advantage of descriptive keys is that they give both the characteristic features of the families and their differences. The delimitation of families and orders drastically differs from the one accepted by the Englerian school and from the one accepted in Arthur Cronquist's system. Takhtajan favors the smaller, more natural families and orders which are more coherent and better defined where characters are easily grasped and which are more suitable for information retrieval and phylogenetic studies including cladistic analysis because it reduces polymorphic codings.

Plant Diversity in India A.K. Bhatnagar, Rupam Kapoor, 2018-07-24 India has a vast landmass of 328 million hectares extending from the tropics to the alpine regions, rich wetlands to deserts, islands, long coastline to Western and Eastern Ghats and the high Himalayas. It has equally rich and diverse plant diversity with over 47,000 species that are already documented. Because of the large population dependence on these plants, expansion of agriculture, urbanization and development efforts, many species are threatened too. Some of the issues concerning plant diversity in India are unique to the country. Taxonomic and floristic studies on all major groups have been carried out, but the information is scattered in research papers and regional local floras, manuals and monographs. This volume intends to bridge this gap. Nine of the thirteen chapters of this volume deal with different plant groups extending from algae to angiosperms and allied groups such as bacteria, fungi, lichens and myxomycetes. There are chapters dealing with topical issues in global context on biodiversity with special reference to India such as climate change and its impact on biodiversity, crop diversity and traditional medicine. Each chapter is written by an author specializing on the particular group and having long experience of research in it. Each chapter includes not only distribution and diversity but also major researches, economic uses and conventional human interactions. Lacunae in current knowledge are also pinpointed The book provides information on ecosystem diversity flora of special sensitive regions mangroves wetland and coral reefs and on policies and strategies being adopted for in situ and ex situ conservation
