Creative Handweaving Michelle J. Yaskel, 2010-12 I always enjoyed making potholders when I was a child In addition I remember making a blanket and purse I even sold some potholders to a few neighbors My lemonade was a lemon but my potholders were perfect Some time ago I walked into a craft store inquiring about some weaving loops or loopers in the window when the owner of the store said quite frankly you really can't do anything with them besides making potholders I knew at the time she was wrong since I had just made my first few potholder or folk art dolls in two styles and copyrighted them in 1991 I knew at that moment I wanted to bring to the attention of the public something unique that would revolutionize an existing but dying craft and turn it into a new art form I have since designed and copyrighted another potholder or folk art doll in 1996 as well as the other items in this book Simple hand weaving has been taken to the next level My folk art dolls have patterns that may be construed as being reminiscent of Alexander Girard and Piet Mondrian They have sold in some museum gift shops in New York such as the Cooper Hewitt for their Alexander Girard retrospective the Whitney the Museum of American Folk Art the Brooklyn Children's Museum and the National Academy of Design as well as some upscale boutiques My mission is for more people to appreciate folk art and a thought outside the box a new spin on doll making By taking pride in one's work from working with one's hands you promote manual dexterity and artistic appreciation and a revival of a dying craft something very important to me Creative Handweaving Xenia Ley Parker, 1976
