The Bronze Age Begins Philip P. Betancourt, 2008 This book focuses on economic and social changes particularly during the opening phase of the Minoan civilization on the island of Crete New developments in ceramics that reached Crete at the end of the Neolithic period greatly contributed to the creation of economic technological social and religious advancements we call the Early Bronze Age The arguments are two fold a detailed explanation of the ceramics we call Early Minoan I and the differences that set it apart from its predecessors and an explanation of how these new and highly superior containers changed the storage transport and accumulation of a new form of wealth consisting primarily of processed agricultural and animal products like wine olive oil and various foods preserved in wine vinegar honey and other liquids The increased stability and security provided by an improved ability to store food from one year to the next would have a profound effect on the society

Funerary Landscapes East of Lasithi, Crete, in the Bronze Age Giorgos Vavouranakis, 2007 This book examines the application of these ideas to Bronze Age burials in east Crete in order to examine the historical significance of a specific pattern of changes in funerary monumentality Within the Early Bronze Age landscape tombs built above the ground were monumental landmarks Such monumentality was lost during the Middle Late Bronze Age period when the dead were usually buried underground or in caves At the same time the living made their presence increasingly marked in the landscape with the erection of palaces and villas and the formation of nucleated settlements Finally the re emergence of burials in the landscape during the Late Minoan III period albeit in the form of modest semi subterranean chambers coincides with a fragmentation of large urban settlements and a return to modest sized communities An examination of funerary activity from a landscape perspective can provide a better understanding of the relationship between funerary monumentality and socio historical process and also the ways in which this relationship was expressed in the landscape

Political Economies of the Aegean Bronze Age Daniel J. Pullen, 2010 This volume brings together an international group of researchers to address how Mycenaean and Minoan states controlled the economy The contributions originally delivered at the 2007 Langford Conference at the Florida State University examine the political economies of state and pre state entities within the Aegean Bronze Age including the issues of centralization and multiple scales of production distribution and consumption within a polity importance of extraregional trade craft specialization the role of non elite institutions and the political economy before the emergence of the palaces The contributors address these issues from an explicitly comparative perspective both within and across Minoan and Mycenaean contexts The conclusions reached in this volume shed new light on the essential differences between and among Minoan and Mycenaean states through their political economies

Denkschriften, 2007 The Annual of the British School at Athens British School at Athens, 2006 A short history of the British school at Athens 1886 1911 by G A Macmillan no 17 p ix xxxviii

The Politics of Storage Kostandinos S. Christakis, 2008 The storage of staples and its importance for the functioning of Cretan Bronze Age society has become an active topic of debate This study reassesses the intrinsic relationship between storage and sociopolitical complexity by combining testimonies on the storage of staples from palatial nonpalatial elite and ordinary domestic contexts dated to the LM I period The main goals are 1 to examine a wide range of information concerned with the storage of staples 2 to develop a comprehensive model to explain how storage strategies operate within LM I societies and 3 to infer sociopolitical and socio economic levels of interaction among the different social sectors operating within LM I societies mainly LM IB societies

Rethinking Craft Specialization in Complex Societies Zachary X. Hruby, Rowan K. Flad, 2007 The contributions to this volume are introduced via a critical review of terms and concepts used in craft production studies today Recent detailed contextual and technological analyses of artifacts from all aspects of complex societies have revealed interesting patterns that are difficult to conceptualize using a purely economic framework Furthermore interest in practice theory and sociocultural theory in general has shifted some foci of archaeological investigation toward the social aspects of production and specialization
