International Heritage and Historic Building Conservation Zeynep Aygen, 2013 The majority of books in English on historic building conservation and heritage preservation training are often restricted to Western architecture and its origins Consequently the history of building conservation the study of contemporary paradigms and case studies in most universities and within wider interest circles predominantly in the UK Europe and USA focus mainly on Europe and sometimes the USA although the latter is often excluded from European publications With an increasingly multicultural student body in Euro American universities and with a rising global interest in heritage preservation there is an urgent need for publications to cover a larger geographical and social area including not only Asia Australia Africa and South America but also previously neglected countries in Europe like the new members of the European Community and the northern neighbour of the USA Canada The inclusion of the other in built environment education in general and in building conservation in particular is a pre requisite of cultural interaction and widening participation International Heritage and Historic Building Conservation assesses successful contemporary conservation paradigms from around the world The book evaluates conservation case studies from previously excluded areas of the world to create an integrated account of Historic Building Conservation that crosses the boundaries of language and culture and sets an example for further inclusive research Analyzing the influence of financial constraints regional conflicts and cultural differences on the heritage of disadvantaged countries this leading edge volume is essential for researchers and students of heritage studies interested in understanding their topics in a wider framework Building Conservation

Philosophy John Earl, Andrew Saint, 2015-12-08 This is a book about ideas rather than techniques Public thirst for visible evidence of the past is not as it is often represented a recent phenomenon It was already well developed when an overseer of ancient monuments was appointed in sixth century Rome But if the desire to preserve aspects of the past is to do more than respond to popular whims and fashions or represent the personal views of ivory towered scholars and specialists it needs to have some kind of solid logical basis Philosophical questions are raised at every turn On what basis can buildings be singled out as historic buildings demanding special protection On what authority can we justify interfering with private property rights in pursuing such protective processes And how should we judge what is acceptable and unacceptable in the treatment of the buildings we value In this third substantially revised edition the author examines the nature of monuments and the varied motives for preserving them He traces the history of movements to preserve old buildings and the furious conflicts that have frequently surrounded restoration campaigns Philosophical problems arising in modern conservation practice including such controversial issues as skin deep preservation and the use of substitute materials are considered in detail More space is devoted in this edition to contextual issues New sections deal with issues of sustainability and the relationship of buildings to the townscape and landscape The number of illustrations has also been greatly increased The book is designed especially for students approaching the subject for the first time but may well be found stimulating by practitioners No easy formulae are offered What conservators have to nurture the author insists is an inquiring and self critical frame of mind enabling them to proceed from comprehensive knowledge of the buildings for the time being in their care via logical argument to defensible if not inevitable solutions Historic Buildings National Institute for the Conservation of Cultural Property (U.S.), 1984

The Conservation Movement Miles Glendinning, 2013 Winner of the 2016 Antoinette Forrester Downing Award presented by the Society of Architectural Historians In many cities across the world particularly in Europe old buildings form a prominent part of the built environment and we often take it for granted that their contribution is intrinsically positive How has that widely shared belief come about and is its continued general acceptance inevitable Certainly ancient structures have long been treated with care and reverence in many societies including classical Rome and Greece But only in modern Europe and America in the last two centuries has this care been elaborated and energised into a forceful dynamic ideology a Conservation Movement infused with a sense of historical destiny and loss that paradoxically shared many of the characteristics of Enlightenment modernity The close inter relationship between conservation and modern civilisation was most dramatically heightened in periods of war or social upheaval beginning with the French Revolution and rising to a tragic climax in the 20th century age of totalitarian extremism more recently the troubled relationship of heritage and global commercialism has become dominant Miles Glendinning's new book authoritatively presents for the first time the entire history of this architectural Conservation Movement and traces its dramatic fluctuations in ideas and popularity ending by questioning whether its recent international ascendancy can last indefinitely
