

Constructing a Life Course

Phyllis Moen

KEYWORDS. Autobiography, research, life course, gender, aging

INTRODUCTION

I consider myself a life course scholar, because I am interested in patterns and pathways at all ages and stages, as well as the strategies individuals, couples, and families adopt in the face of expected and unexpected change (Moen & Wethington, 1992). My research spans the adult life course—from the early parenting years through retirement and life after retirement (Moen & Yu, 1999; Moen, Dempster-McClain, & Williams, 1989, 1992; Moen, 1997). A central focus of my research and writing is gender: the ways that gender shapes the choices and life chances of men and women as they move through roles and relationships (Han & Moen, 1999a; Han & Moen, 1999b; Moen, 1995, 1996, 2000; Moen & Han, 1999; Quick & Moen, 1998). This points to the importance of a role context approach, placing lives in the context of gender, cohort, and other markers of location in the social structure (see a discussion of the role context approach in Moen, Dempster-McClain, & Williams, 1989).

In thinking about my own biography, I can see the value of taking a life course approach in the study of lives. Who I am today, and what I do, reflects the interaction of various life course processes: context, linked lives, transitions, and trajectories.

CONTEXT

Historical Location

I was born in 1942, the year after America entered World War II, which meant that I have moved through life just ahead of the large Baby Boom

Constructing The Life Course:

Embracing the Song of Phrase: An Psychological Symphony within Constructing The Life Course

In a global taken by monitors and the ceaseless chatter of instant transmission, the melodic beauty and psychological symphony developed by the published word often fade into the background, eclipsed by the persistent sound and interruptions that permeate our lives. But, set within the pages of Constructing The Life Course a marvelous literary prize overflowing with raw emotions, lies an immersive symphony waiting to be embraced. Constructed by an elegant composer of language, this charming masterpiece conducts visitors on a psychological trip, skillfully unraveling the hidden tunes and profound impact resonating within each carefully constructed phrase. Within the depths of this poignant analysis, we shall discover the book is central harmonies, analyze its enthralling writing design, and submit ourselves to the profound resonance that echoes in the depths of readers souls.
