Pursuing Happiness Stanley Lebergott, 2014-07-14 Whether watching baseball or undergoing heart surgery Americans have bought a variety of goods and services to achieve happiness Here is a provocative look at what they have chosen to purchase Stanley Lebergott maintains that the average consumer has behaved more reasonably than many distinguished critics of materialism have suggested He sees consumers seeking to make an uncertain and often cruel world into a pleasanter and more convenient place and for the most part succeeding With refreshing common sense he reminds us of what many luxuries have meant especially for women increased income since 1900 has been used largely to lighten the backbreaking labor once required by household chores Originally published in 1993 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

American Consumer Society, 1865 - 2005 Regina Lee Blaszczyk, 2009 This startlingly original and highly readable volume adds a new richness and depth to an element of U S history that is all too often taken for granted In American Consumer Society Regina Lee Blaszczyk examines the emergence of consumerism in the Victorian era and in tracing its evolution over the next 140 years shows how the emergence of a mass market was followed by its fragmentation Niche marketing focused on successive waves of new consumers as each made its presence known Irish immigrants urban African Americans teenagers computer geeks and soccer moms to name but a few Blaszczyk demonstrates that middle class consumerism is an intrinsic part of American identity but exactly how consumerism reflected that identity changed over time Initially driven to imitate those who had already achieved success Americans eventually began to use their purchases to express themselves This led to a fundamental change in American culture one in which the American reverence for things was replaced by a passion for experiences New Millennium families no longer treasured exquisite china or dress in fine clothes but they ll spare no expense on being able to make phone calls retrieve emails watch ESPN or visit web sites at any place any time Victorian mothers just wouldn't understand Using materials and techniques from business history art history anthropology sociology material culture and good story telling this lavishly illustrated and highly thoughtful narrative offers a compelling re interpretation of American culture through the lens of consumerism making it perfect for use not only as supplementary reading in the U S survey but also for a variety of courses in Business Culture Economics Marketing and Fashion and Design history Program of the Annual Meeting - American Historical Association American Historical Association, 1997 Some programs include also the programs of societies meeting concurrently with the association

American Living Standards, 1888-1994 Dora L. Costa, 2000 I use micro data on food and recreation expenditures from

1888 to 1994 to provide the first estimates of overall CPI bias prior to the 1970s and new estimates of bias since the 1970s and to reassess long run growth rates I find that CPI bias was 0.1 percentage points per year between 1888 and 1919 and rose to 0.7 percentage points per year between 1919 and 1935 CPI bias was low in the 1950s and 0.3 percentage points per year in the 1960s and then rose to 2.7 percentage points per year between 1973 and 1982 before falling to 0.6 percentage points per year between 1983 and 1994 Inadequately accounting for the introduction of new consumer goods probably was the biggest source of bias between 1919 and 1935 Revised growth rates suggest that despite the Great Depression real per capita personal income was not falling but was rising by 0.5 percentage points per year between 1919 and 1935 and that growth rates were not stagnant in the 1970s but were almost as high as in the 1960s 4.0 and 3.2 in the 1960s and 1970s respectively
