Constraints On Pulaar Phonology:

Constraints on Pulaar Phonology Mamadou Ousmane Niang, 1996-12-30 Constraints in Pulaar Phonology provides clear and convincing analyses and solutions to linguistic phenomena whose treatment in the literature remained unsatisfactory until now. An analysis of the metrical structure and other morphological and phonological processes in Pulaar shows the need for further distinctions beyond the generally admitted binary ones. The argument is supported by various processes that obtain in Pulaar, a dialect of Fula, a language of the West Atlantic Branch of the Niger Congo Language Family. The analyses adopted show Pulaar not only breaks this binary distinction but also makes a four way weight distinction in contrast to other views according to which only a two way weight distinction prevails in languages. The analysis of the metrical system of Pulaar shows that stress assignment is sensitive to the sonority hierarchy of the syllables in the word. Four sonority levels CV.

Beyond Markedness in Formal Phonology Bridget D. Samuels, 2017-11-16 In recent years an increasing number of linguists have re-examined the question of whether markedness has explanatory power or whether it is a phenomenon that begs explanation itself. This volume brings together a collection of articles with a broad range of critical viewpoints on the notion of markedness in phonological theory. The contributions span a variety of phonological frameworks and relate to morphosyntax, historical linguistics, neurolinguistics, biolinguistics, and language typology. This volume will be of particular interest to phonologists of both synchronic and diachronic persuasions and has strong implications for the architecture of grammar with respect to phonology and its interfaces with morphosyntax and phonetics.

Input-based Phonological Acquisition Tania Zamuner, 2004-11-23 This book provides an analysis of two theories of language acquisition: the theory that acquisition is primarily mediated by innate properties of language provided by universal grammar and the opposing theory that language is acquired based on the patterns in the ambient language. A problem not often considered is that these two theories are confounded because the structures that are frequent across languages are also typically the most frequent within a specific language. In addition, the innate theory of language acquisition is difficult to quantify and qualify. Using cross-linguistic corpus and experimental approaches, this book attempts to contrast these theories through an examination of the acquisition of word final consonants in English Lexical Phonology and Morphology Carole Paradis, 2014-02-03 This book presents a description of the phonology and morphology of the nominal class system in Fula a dialect which displays 21 nominal classes These are identified by suffixes which can attach to nominal verbal and adjectival stems The main objective of this work is to show through a lexical analysis that there are only two monomorphemic marker variants and that the distribution of these variants is predictable The Multilingual Apple Ofelia García, Joshua A. Fishman, 2002 This book will be of special interest to the general reader concerned with the issue of language in the United States as well as the language specialist and sociolinguist It has been written to inform those wishing to learn more about the role that languages other than English have had and continue to have in the life of the most important United States city New York At the same time this volume makes an important contribution to the scholarly literature on urban multilingualism and the sociology of language The book contains chapters on languages of ethnolinguistic groups who arrived early in New York and which have been somewhat silenced Irish German Yiddish the languages of groups who made early contributions and continue to be heard in the city Italian Greek Spanish Hebrew and languages which are acquiring an important voice in the city today Chinese Indian languages English creoles Haitian Creole Selected Proceedings of the 35th Annual Conference on African Linguistics John M.
