Consulting Profession In Developing Countries A Strategy For Development:

The consulting profession in developing countries : a strategy for development Syed S. Kirmani, Warren C. Baum, 1991

The authors concluded that during the past two decades the number of domestic consulting firms in developing countries has increased phenomenally. However, the quality of their performance has not kept pace with the growth in numbers. The policies and practices of government internal weaknesses in staffing and management and the lack of a supportive environment have prevented domestic consulting firms from effectively exercising the key role that they should in planning, designing and implementing their countries investment programs. The authors also point out that favorable opportunities for growth of the consulting profession exist but a number of constraints will have to be overcome for those to be realized. The profession generally suffers from several structural weaknesses. It is characterized by a small number of large firms, mostly public enterprises which dominate the business, and at the other end of the scale a very large number of small or medium size private firms often in a precarious position. The recommended strategy for strengthening the domestic consulting is addressed to both the developing countries and the World Bank and other donors.

New Perspectives on Construction in Developing Countries George Ofori, 2012-06-26. Developing countries face the challenge of maintaining economic growth and socio-economic development at the core of which sits the construction industry. Considerable research on construction in developing countries took place in the 1970s and 1980s but little since, a gap which this book fills. Including contributions from prominent academics and practitioners in Australia, China, the Netherlands, Portugal, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland, and the UK, this is a truly international analysis of a subject of global interest. The most insightful and relevant of recent research on topics such as Millennium Development Goals, the informal construction sector, human resource development, technology, finance, and social change are all addressed in the context of the construction industry in the developing world. Also considered are other key aspects of construction industry.

development such as institution building nurturing of contractors and consultants and championing of industry development programmes While the challenge has grown and the needs have become even more pressing the research to date has rarely presented effective solutions Focussing on those aspects of the construction industry most crucial to development this is a much needed up to date study that sheds new light on a variety of concepts and issues This is essential reading for researchers professionals and students interested in the construction industry in developing countries Readers of this book will be interested in its companion volume Contemporary Issues of Construction in Developing Countries International Consulting: Providing Your Service to International Agencies Lindsay Falvey, 1993 History context and development of development consulting and some means of entering the profession during the 1990s Applied Geography and Development, 1995 Policies and Measures for Small-contractor Development in the Construction Industry, 1996

Government Reports Announcements & Index, 1992-06 Awakening the Market Danny M. Leipziger, 1992 This essay considers the basic issues facing transitional socialist economies including price reforms enterprise and financial sector reforms and institutional changes relating to the role of government Using Viet Nam as the case in point it identifies the key constraints facing governments seeking to move rapidly to the market system Although Viet Nam is only on its third year of reform it has achieved a number of successes prominent among which are almost complete price decontrol and a flexible exchange rate The essay addresses a number of specific concerns facing Viet Nam Among these are links between enterprise and banking form issues of decentralization industrial policy changes in ownership and private sector development and issues of social justice The objectives of this paper are to i inform a broad readership about the bold economic reform program being undertaken without international assistance in Viet Nam ii to identify for the authorities key bottlenecks and future issues to be addressed iii to contrast where possible this experiment vis a vis reform programs in other countries and iv to begin the process of generalizing lessons from these cases so as to better understand the transformation process itself Aanwinsten van de Centrale Bibliotheek (Queteletfonds) Bibliothèque centrale (Fonds Quetelet), 1992
