How Influences Consumer Behavior Johnny Ch LOK,2021-07-05 Why social and physical environmental factors have close relationship to influence economic growth I shall indicate reasons to explain why social and physical environmental factors have close relationship to influence economic growth even human health of quality of life The social and economic burdens of poor education lack of affordable housing and less than self sufficient income affect not just those individuals and families who have the fewest resources The social gradient means that not only do those in the bottom worse health outcomes to bottom of income group and the top income group who will have poor quality of life influence The higher rates of disease and disability and lesser productivity among many communities means a higher public and private burden of life years particularly life expectancy once one reaches age 65 In recent decades research and has increasingly shown how powerfully social and economic conditions determine population health and differences in health among subgroups much more so than medical care It seems that environmental factor can influence human s quality of life Los Angeles County Department Of public Health 2016 indicated a country health rankings model this department explained these three health factors can cause this health outcomes These health factors include health behaviors 30% it includes tobacco use diet and exercise alcohol use unsafe sex clinical care 20% it includes access to care quality of care social and economic factors 40% it includes education employment income family and social support community safety physical environmental factor 10% includes natural environmental quality built environmental quality Then these factors can cause this health outcomes such as morality length of life 50% and morbidity quality of life 50% SO it implies that physical environmental factor can influence human s length of life So on our social environmental problems result is from a complex interplay of a number of forces An individual s health related behaviors particularly diet exercise and smoking surrounding physical environment and health care both access and quality all contribute significantly to how long and how well human live However none of these factors is as important to population health as are the social and economic environments in which human live learn work and play We refer to these factors can be as the social determinants of health to influence our quality of life How do social determinants affect our quality of life In the late 19th and early 20th centuries public health concentrated particularly on the physical environment Improvements in for example clean water supplies healthier housing sanitation workplace safety and safe food lead to sharp increases in average life expectancy Also our quality of life needed to be concentrated on expanded access to medical care resulting in further expansion So the poverty trap is now characterized by those elements such as low levels of i environmental quality ii life expectancy and iii human capital Environmental Quality Analysis Allen V. Lenelis Kruse,Volker Schwarz,Reiner Arlt,1988 Handbook of Environmental Psychology and Quality of Life Research Ghazlane Fleury-Bahi,Enric Pol,Oscar Navarro,2016-08-12 This Handbook presents a broad overview of the current research carried out in environmental psychology which puts into perspective quality of life and relationships with living spaces and shows how this original analytical framework can be used to understand different environmental and societal issues Adopting an original approach this Handbook focuses on the links with other specialties in psychology especially social and health psychology together with other disciplines such as geography architecture sociology anthropology urbanism and engineering Faced with the problems of society which involve the quality of life of individuals and communities it is fundamental to consider the relationships an individual has with his different living spaces This issue of the links between quality of life and environment is becoming increasingly significant with at a local level problems resulting from different types of annoyances such as pollution and noise while at a global level there is the central question of climate change with its harmful consequences for humans and the planet How can the impact on well being of environmental nuisances and threats for example natural risks pollution and noise be reduced How can the quality of life within daily living spaces home cities work environments be improved Why is it important to understand the psychological issues of our relationship with the global environment climatic warming ecological behaviours This Handbook is intended not only for students of various disciplines geography architecture psychology town planning etc but also for social decision makers and players who will find in it both theoretical and methodological perspectives so that psychological and environmental dimensions can be better taken into account in their working practices Consumer behaviour and environmental quality Liisa Uusitalo,1982 Growth Management and Environmental Quality Michael Kahoe,1992 Consumer Behaviour and Environmental Quality Internationales Institut für Umwelt und Gesellschaft.
