Teaching Poetry in the EFL Classroom. A Multimodal Lesson with an interactive Whiteboard Markus Emerson, 2015-12-07 Project Report from the year 2012 in the subject American Studies Culture and Applied Geography grade 1 TU Dortmund American Studies course Cultural and Media Studies language English abstract The thesis for our project was the following Using the Whiteboard WB in a poetry lesson in the English Foreign Language classroom can enrich the teaching and learning experience and therefore foster a positive learning climate where different learner types are addressed We tried to create a ninety minute seminar session which firstly proves our thesis and secondly motivate you to take a closer look at the opportunities that the WB offers for teachers Thus we chose a variety of four different sessions that featured various usages of the WB in an entertaining but academic way and should raise awareness of possible and new ways to use the WB as well as to inspire students who will themselves be teachers one day for the future Hence we tried to incorporate various forms of WB usage to show how it can transcend usual PowerPoint presentations and add more media As far as the content of the session is concerned we focused on poetry creative aspects as well as analytical tasks as poetry is a form of writing that can be produced and received in various different and individual ways due to its nature Feelings and ideas can be expressed freely and creatively As poems are usually in a condensed and short format connected activities like producing reading or interpreting them can all be done in the classroom. The individual and creative aspect motivates pupils and can support a very personal access to this format of writing Combining poetry and WB can lead to a new poetry teaching experience According to Fleming pupils ideas about poetry will inevitably be formed by the extent and variety of their reading in fact as suggested earlier confusion is likely to arise if poetry is introduced into the classroom only at infrequent intervals 40 Employing the WB offers the chance to have a greater variety of readings and understandings through different channels and input visual audio visual video That the WB combines different media also makes it easier to discuss intermedial intermodal forms of poetry This is also supported by Shenton and Pagett's research on the WB in classrooms They conclude that WBs have great potential for motivating and engaging pupils in sophisticated forms of multimodality 135 Furthermore the frequency of dealing with poetry can be raised It is much quicker to analyse a poem save the changes connect to the internet and be interactive with the WB The Etude ,1908 A monthly journal for the musician the music student and all music lovers
