Cubby In Wonderland:

Cubby in Wonderland Frances Joyce Farnsworth, 2025-06-24 Frances Joyce Farnsworth's delightful story of Cubby in Wonderland is a charming blend of whimsy nature education and adventure aimed at young readers and animal lovers alike. Cubby is a curious and endearing black bear cub who escapes the confines of his zoo life to explore the wild landscapes of Yellowstone National Park. Along the way he meets a colorful cast of forest creatures: wise owls, bumbling porcupines, playful squirrels, and learns important lessons about survival, friendship, and the balance of nature. The book, originally published in the early 20th century, reflects an emerging environmental awareness and reverence for America's national parks. With gentle humor and an eye for ecological detail, Farnsworth weaves real-life information about Yellowstone's flora and fauna into a fable-like narrative that celebrates both wildlife and conservation. Beautifully illustrated in its original editions, the book retains its appeal as a read-aloud favorite or independent reading for children. Cubby in Wonderland remains a joyful introduction to nature's wonders, encouraging young minds to respect, explore, and protect the natural world.

Rhetorical Landscapes in America Gregory Clark, 2021-11-24 A panoramic explanation of civic tourism and the shaping of a national identity. At the same time a reading of Kenneth Burke and of tourist landscapes in America. Gregory Clark's new study explores the rhetorical power connected with American tourism. Looking specifically at a time when citizens of the United States first took to rail and then highway to become sightseers in their own country, Clark traces the rhetorical function of a wide-ranging set of tourist experiences. He explores how the symbolic experiences Americans share as tourists have helped residents of a vast and diverse nation adopt a national identity. In doing so, he suggests that the rhetorical power of a national culture is wielded not only by public discourse but also by public experiences. Clark examines places in the American landscape that have facilitated such experiences, including New York City, Shaker villages, Yellowstone National Park, the Lincoln Highway, San Francisco's 1915 Panama Pacific International Exposition, and the Grand Canyon. He examines the rhetorical power of these sites to transform private individuals into public citizens and evaluates a national culture that teaches Americans to experience certain places as potent symbols of national community. Invoking Burke's concept of identification to explain such rhetorical encounters, Clark considers Burke's lifelong study of symbols, linguistic and otherwise, and their place in the construction and transformation of individual identity. Clark turns to Burke's work to expand our awareness of the rhetorical resources that lead individuals within a community to adopt a collective identity, and he considers the implications of nineteenth and twentieth-century tourism for both visual rhetoric and the rhetoric of display.
