

A person is sitting on a wooden bench, looking out over a landscape. The person is silhouetted against a bright, hazy sky. The bench is made of dark wood. The person is wearing a light-colored shirt and dark pants. The background shows a grassy field and some trees in the distance. The overall mood is contemplative and melancholic.

BROKEN

— VOWS

Promises once whispered,
Now echoes in the wind.

Tears fall like rain,
As love's flame flickers and dims.

Shattered dreams lie scattered,
Leaving only bitter truths within.

Cry From The Deep:

Cry from the Deep Ramsey Flynn, 2011-04-05 A superb account of the disastrous loss of a Russian submarine off the nation's northern coast and its repercussions Publishers Weekly On August 12 2000 during one of the most important military demonstrations in post Soviet history an enormous explosion sank Russia's most prized nuclear submarine the Kursk When Vladimir Putin's men failed to rescue the 118 young submariners trapped under the icy Barents Sea and refused timely help from foreigners for four days the Russian president assured his angry nation that all the men had died within minutes of the blasts An earlier rescue would not have changed anything Two months later recovery divers brought up the dead submarine's first twelve bodies one of which had a soggy note clinging to the burned remnants of his breast pocket Addressed to his wife it read There are twenty three of us here None of us can get to the surface Let's hope someone will read this Don't despair Kolesnikov The Kolesnikov Note became the cry from the depths of Russia's tormented soul as an anguished people confronted their government about what matters more guarding secrets and pride or protecting human life What were Russian officials thinking when they waited forty eight hours to acknowledge that their most treasured submarine was in trouble Why did they track the desperate tapping noises that seemed to be coming from the sub without sending an international SOS For a world community still mystified by deadly Russian deceptions surrounding the Kursk submarine disaster Cry from the Deep solves the riddles once and for all What emerges from Flynn's exhaustive reporting is the definitive account of this pivotal moment in Russia's rocky emergence into the community of free nations By turns thrilling heart wrenching and absorbing Cry from the Deep exposes the truths behind an event that riveted the world devastated and enraged the Russian people and ultimately defined a new era of Russian politics

Cry from the Deep Ramsey Flynn, 2005-12-13 A gripping account of the disastrous Russian submarine explosion that killed the entire crew devastated the Russian people and defined Vladimir Putin's post Cold War regime What were Russian officials thinking when they waited 48 hours to acknowledge their most prized submarine was in trouble Why did they track the desperate tapings of an unknown number of trapped sailors without sending an international SOS Why did they repeatedly decline international rescue offers while their own rescue equipment repeatedly failed to make any progress To a world community still mystified by deadly Russian deceptions surrounding the Kursk submarine disaster Ramsey Flynn's book uncovers the truth once and for all Cry from the Deep has quickly become the definitive account of this pivotal moment in modern Russian history as an angry Russian people aided and abetted by a fledgling independent media openly clashed with Vladimir Putin and his new government's Soviet era tactics of secrecy and deception Flynn's searing narrative also documents how western officials in a practiced silence reminiscent of the Cold War era failed to notify their post Soviet counterparts of the disaster despite learning of the explosion hours before the Russians did
