Pedagogical Psychology: Beyond the 21st Century Gretchen M. Reeve, Stanley N. Bursten, 2015-07-22 Frontiers in Psychology is introducing a new research topic Pedagogical Psychology Beyond the 21st Century which will be released as an online journal issue in summer 2014 The purpose of Beyond the 21st Century will be to publish goal oriented articles leading to improvement of teaching and learning at all levels of psychology education Until perhaps 20 years ago educational approaches to teaching were largely informed by a Stand and Deliver pedagogical attitude. The psychology of this approach has often invested unrealistic and unrealizable responsibilities in both teachers and students. With the emergence of electronic data sharing e.g. the Internet and global cooperation, competition, newer approaches to teaching have begun to supplement and sometimes replace the older model of teaching. These newer approaches have simultaneously taken advantage of technological advances, global changes, and an evolving understanding of successful student-mentor relationships. As the pedagogical models driven by these changes evolve into the 22nd century and beyond, what seems groundbreaking today will in hindsight be seen as hidebound. Thus the major goal of Beyond the 21st Century will be to publish manuscripts which imaginatively but realistically anticipate future trends in teaching undergraduate psychology. Types of manuscripts which are appropriate for Pedagogical Psychology should be visionary yet empirically and/or theoretically based. We welcome manuscripts in all domains of pedagogical psychology with a special interest on topics that are new or expected to evolve rapidly. Such innovative topics include but are not limited to: Online and hybrid teaching; Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs); How has student success improved with the introduction of online distance education? Are there dangers associated with online distance education, especially MOOCs? How can student success be improved as technology evolves beyond the MOOC concept? What technological advances will make psychology education available and useful for more and more diverse students? How can the physical classroom be transformed into a student-centered, effective virtual environment? Using the internet as resources for classes e.g. stat tutorials etc. Uses of technology such as social media e.g. Facebook, Twitter, wikis and clickers in the classroom. The challenge of teaching particular courses online such as psychology laboratory courses or practicums. Seeking effective user feedback i.e. regarding user-friendliness, teaching effectiveness for online courses including MOOCs. The Wikipedia initiative of the Association for Psychological Science. Teaching Generation Me, anticipating changing generational needs. Teaching international students. Teaching non-traditional age students. Undergraduate research projects. Integrating multiculturalism into all courses. Infusing social justice issues into psychology courses. Creating opportunities for interdisciplinary learning. Teaching techniques for psychology courses which are often offered as electives rather than core curriculum e.g. evolutionary psychology, psychology and the law, cross-cultural psychology, health psychology, positive psychology. Assessing institutional student learning objectives across the curriculum. Contingent faculty, adjunct faculty, lecturers in psychology departments. Working with changing legislative accreditation constraints and unpredictable budgets. Co-Hosts of Pedagogy.

Agency, Change and Learning Julian Randall, Bernard Burnes, 2023-12-05. Despite the plethora of books on change, there appears a notable gap in the field: rarely is the authentic and candid voice of change agents heard. How often do academics or practitioners candidly state what they actually do when they are faced with managing change in their own organisations or when they are called on in a consultancy capacity? In this new book, the editors bring together a diverse group of contributors who have worked as Internal Change Agents in organizations to divulge what they really do and think about change The authors draw on their own research work involving change agents and their change interventions and include current reflections on the post Covid world of work and the change required for achieving change interventions successfully Each contribution offers perspectives from real change programmes in both the public and private sector offering a unique opportunity to move beyond theory and understand change in practice The book offers valuable insights for academics and students of organisational change and behaviour leadership and organisational development Innovations in Learning and Technology for the Workplace and Higher Education David Guralnick, Michael E. Benefits & Compensation Digest, 2007 Conference Proceedings, 2004 Evaluating Online Learning Arthur T. Weston, 2009 Education in this country has evolved dramatically from the days of one teacher in a one room schoolhouse Today student learning is no longer confined to a physical space Computers and the Internet have broken through school walls giving students greater opportunities to personalise their education access distant resources receive extra help or more challenging assignments and engage in learning in new and unique ways This book provides a new look at the relatively new enterprise of online learning in the K 12 arena which is expanding rapidly with increasing numbers of providers offering services and more students choosing to participate As with any education program online learning initiatives must be held accountable for results Thus it is critical for students and their parents as well as administrators policymakers and funders to have data informing them about program and student outcomes and if relevant about how well a particular program compares to traditional education models Rigorous evaluations are essential to this process and are included in this book They identify whether programs and online resources are performing as promised and equally important they can point to areas for improvement
