Drayson,2025-12-02 The epic history of Europe's rich Islamic heritage exploring the endless complexities of this centuries long relationship Few readers are aware how much Europe owes to its Islamic heritage this book aims to restore the central place of Muslim culture in the continent's history while exploring the endless complexities that this vexed relationship creates At a time when Islam is so narrowly identified with terrorism and migration in Europe Crucible of Light is a welcome and necessary corrective The contested but fruitful relationship between Islam and Europe begins in 711AD with the Moorish invasion of Spain and continues to the present Crucible of Light tells the story of the conquest and reconquest of Spain over an epic 800 year period the meteoric rise of Arabo Norman Sicily the Ottoman renaissance of the sixteenth to eighteenth centuries and the ebb and flow of Balkan history and the fate of contested islands like Cyprus and Malta with their very different outcomes This scale of history can only be done by focusing on individual stories and key places and above all by tracking themes Winding through this story are of course epic battles and sieges with Jihad and Crusade mirroring each other but also periods of extraordinary collaboration and sharing Europe owing its initial rediscovery of classical learning and science via the vast libraries in Spain scoured for enlightenment by Muslim Jewish and Christian scholars alike Moorish architecture and gardens and geometric design not to mention the life of the harem eventually feed into the insatiable appetite for Orientalism in the nineteenth century which itself was the sequel to an earlier obsession for oriental goods in the sixteenth and seventeenth century courts In between there are patterns of hidden faiths and swapped identities as people or buildings adapt or change sides The Hagia Sophia in Istanbul at one end of the Mediterranean and the Great Mosque in Cordoba with its huge cathedral dropped into the middle of it bookend the kinds of religious inversions we find in this epic story Travel and exchange of people ideas and merchandise are an undercurrent throughout arriving inevitably in Venice in its golden age cutting across opposite tides of rivalry intolerance and military confrontation Socioeconomic and Travel Demand Forecasts for Virginia and Potential Policy Responses John Sanders Miller,2009 VTrans2035 Virginia's statewide multimodal transportation plan requires 25 year forecasts of socioeconomic and travel activity Between 2010 and 2035 daily vehicle miles traveled DVMT will increase between 35% and 45% accompanied by increases in population 28% to 36% real household income 50% employment 49% transit trips 75% and enplanements 104% Of the 2.27 to 2.87 million additional Virginians forecast by 2035 most 1.72 to 2.34 million will settle in one of four planning district commissions PDCs These PDCs and their expected population increases are George Washington Regional 0.25 to 0.28 million Richmond Regional 0.33 to 0.41 million Hampton Roads 0.31 to 0.41 million and Northern Virginia 0.83 to 1.23 million Virginia will likely see the number of people age 65 and over double from 1 million at present to 2 million in 2035 Four potential policy responses to these forecasts are given in this report 1 encourage increased density at select urban locations to reduce CO2 emissions 2

use cost effectiveness as a criterion to select project level alternatives for achieving a particular goal 3 identify policy initiatives to serve increased demographic market segments and 4 quantify the economic harm of general aviation airport closures These policy responses are not the only ones feasible but were selected because they necessitate the interagency coordination that is the premise of VTrans2035 The first two policy responses demonstrate limited but real promise The first may reduce DVMT by 1 1% to 6 4% of the baseline 2035 DVMT forecast for a reduction of 1 507 million metric tons of CO2 annually Yet DVMT is affected to a greater degree by factors over which decision makers exert less influence than with density For example the 2035 baseline DVMT decreases by 7% if an alternative population forecast is assumed 10% to 65% if real household income remains relatively flat and 49% to 82% if fuel costs increase to 10 gal by year 2035 Thus the best estimates of travel activity are highly sensitive to underlying assumptions regarding economic conditions and the report accordingly documents for each desired forecast a range of possible values The analysis of the second policy response found that the cost effectiveness of plausible alternatives in a hypothetical case study varied by a factor of 3 By extension this finding suggests that an ability to choose project alternatives based solely on each alternative s ability to meet a single goal or a limited number of goals and without constraint by funding source e g highway or transit capital or operations can increase the cost effectiveness of a project The remaining two policy responses suggest that consideration of diverse alternatives such as programs to help older persons continue driving may be productive as suggested in some literature Because the report does not contain the data necessary to evaluate the impacts of these programs the report merely identifies such programs and demonstrates how they could be considered given the demographic changes forecast to occur between now and 2035
