Minutes ... Methodist Episcopal Church. Conferences. Central Ohio Conference, 1900 Religion, Gender, and Industry Geordan Hammond, Peter Forsaith, 2011-11-04 What part did religion play in late eighteenth and early nineteenth century Britain How did the local situation differ from the national picture What was the role of women in society and the church And how did the emerging centers of industrial activity interact with the places in which they sprung up These are wide questions but they can be seen in microcosm in one small area of the English midlands the parish of Madeley Shropshire in which was the birthplace of the industrial revolution Coalbrookdale Here the evangelical Methodist clergyman John Fletcher ministered between 1760 and 1785 among a population including Catholics and Quakers as well people indifferent to religion Then for nearly sixty years after his death two women Fletcher's widow and later her protegee had virtual charge of the parish which became one of the last examples of Methodism remaining within the Church of England Through examining this specific locality these essays engage particularly with areas of broader significance including Methodism's roots and growth in relation to the Church of England religion and gender in eighteenth century Britain and religion and emerging industrial society The last decade has seen substantial growth in studies of John and Mary Fletcher early Methodism and its relationship to the Church of England Religion Gender and Industry offers a contribution to this developing area of research The groundbreaking essays in this volume are written by an international group of scholars and present the latest research in this field The contributions in this volume originally presented at a conference in Shropshire in 2009 address these themes from multidisciplinary perspectives including history theology gender studies and industry In addition to furthering
