Cyriac Of Ancona Later Travels:

Later Travels Ciriaco (d'Ancona), 2003 Cyriac of Ancona is sometimes regarded as the father of classical archaeology Cyriac's accounts of his travels with commentary reflecting wide ranging antiquarian political religious and commercial interests provide a fascinating record of the encounter of the Renaissance world with the legacy of classical antiquity To Wake the Dead Marina Belozerskaya, 2011-05-23 How Cyriacus of Ancona merchant spy and amateur classicist traveled the world fighting to save ancient monuments for posterity At the beginning of the fifteenth century a young Italian bookkeeper fell under the spell of the classical past Despite his limited education the Greeks and Romans seemed to speak directly to him not from books but from the physical ruins and inscriptions that lay neglected around the shores of the Mediterranean As an international merchant Cyriacus of Ancona was accustomed to the perils of travel in foreign lands unlike his more scholarly peers with their handsome libraries and wealthy patrons who benefited greatly from the discoveries communicated in his widely distributed letters and drawings Having seen firsthand the destruction of the world's cultural heritage Cyriacus resolved to preserve it for future generations To do so he would spy on the Ottomans court popes and emperors and even organize a crusade Venice's Intimate Empire Erin Maglaque, 2018-06-15 Mining private writings and humanist texts Erin Maglaque explores the lives and careers of two Venetian noblemen Giovanni Bembo and Pietro Coppo who were appointed as colonial administrators and governors In Venice's Intimate Empire she uses these two men and their families to showcase the relationship between humanism empire and family in the Venetian Mediterranean Maglaque elaborates an intellectual history of Venice's Mediterranean empire by examining how Venetian humanist education related to the task of governing Taking that relationship as her cue Maglaque unearths an intimate view of the emotions and subjectivities of imperial governors In their writings it was the affective relationships between husbands and wives parents and children humanist teachers and their students that were the crucible for self definition and political decision making Venice's Intimate Empire thus illuminates the experience of imperial governance by drawing connections between humanist education and family affairs From marriage and reproduction to childhood and adolescence we see how intimate life was central to the Bembo and Coppo families experience of empire Maglaque skillfully argues that it was within the intimate family that Venetians relationships to empire its politics its shifting social structures its metropolitan and colonial cultures were determined Historical Truth in Fifteenth-Century Italy Giuliano Mori, 2024 While humanists agreed on identifying the main requirement of the historical genre with truthfulness they disagreed on their notions of historical truth Some authors equated historical truth with verisimilitude thus harmonizing the quest for truth with other ingredients of their histories such as their political utility and rhetorical aptness Others instead rejected the notion of verisimilitude identifying historical truth with factuality Accordingly they sought to produce bare and exhaustive accounts of all the things that pertained to their historical explorations often resorting to innovative disciplines such as archeology philology and the history of institutions

The humanist historiographical debate is especially significant because the notion of verisimilitude encompassed crucial elements required for the development of methods of critical assessment. By perceiving verisimilitude and factuality as irreconcilable, Quattrocento humanists reached a critical impasse; those who were interested in factual truth mostly lacked the means to ascertain it, while those that developed embryonic notions of historical criticism were not eminently concerned with the factual account of the past. This critical weakness exposed humanists to considerable risks, including that of accepting non-verisimilar historical forgeries passed off as factual. Such forgeries eventually served as a testing ground for sixteenth and seventeenth-century scholars who sought to restore factual truth by means of critical criteria grounded in verisimilitude, thus overcoming the humanist impasse.

Historical Truth in Fifteenth Century Italy addresses Renaissance history, philosophy, rhetoric, and jurisprudence to shed light on how humanists conceptualized truth and, more specifically, historical truth. Journal of Roman Archaeology, 2005

Milestones in Archaeology Tim Murray, 2007-04-13. Milestones in Archaeology: A Chronological Encyclopedia uses three essays on different historical periods to bring together over 500 years of archaeology's greatest hits, some familiar, some deserving wider recognition for their impact on our understanding of history. As the work moves forward, century by century, readers will experience the evolution of a science from the simplest tools to the collecting of antiquarian dabblers to today's globalized enterprises combining old-fashioned dirty hands work with satellites, computers, x-rays, and other modern technologies. The Religions of the Book Matthew Dimmock, Andrew Hadfield, 2008-04-03. The Religions of the Book is the first study to explore the relationship between Christianity, Judaism, and Islam in the Early Modern period. A series of distinguished contributors debate the complicated terms in which these Religions of the Book interacted in negative and positive ways, revealing predictable hostilities alongside attempts to forge links and explore connections. The collection illuminates a crucial but neglected area of European culture from the late Middle Ages to the end of the seventeenth century. Nuncius, 2007. Annali di storia della scienza

The Journal of Medieval and Early Modern Studies, 2004

The Frontiers of the Ottoman World A.C.S. Peacock, 2009-12-03. The Ottoman Empire was one of the crucial forces that shaped the modern world. These essays combine archaeological and historical approaches to shed light on how the Ottoman Empire approached the challenge of governing frontiers as diverse as Central and Eastern Europe, Anatolia, Iraq, Arabia, and the Sudan over the 15th to 20th centuries.

Italy Illuminated: Liguria ; Tuscany Biondo Flavio, 2005

Reading Inscriptions and Writing Ancient History William Stenhouse, 2005. This book shows how the work of a group of scholars active in Rome in the mid-sixteenth century redefined the scope and nature of historical writing. In collecting and comparing inscriptions from Classical Rome, they began to question the value of these inscriptions as historical sources.

Religion, Culture, and Sacred Space Martyn Smith, 2008-09-15. This book proposes a new way of thinking about how a place becomes sacred and investigates the cultural considerations that influence the way a place becomes fixed in a society's consciousness Smith argues that intense emotional attachments to places are constructed by texts that attach a narrative to the physical landscape Through an examination of a wide range of sites including Abydos in ancient Egypt Delos in classical Greece and Mecca in medieval Islam a new theory of the human relationship to space is elaborated His is a theory that has implications for the way we go about preserving landscapes as well as the way we understand our own experience of the world     Memoirs of the American Academy in Rome American Academy in Rome,2014     Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes Warburg Institute,2007     Acta Conventus Neo-Latini Bonnensis Rhoda Schnur,2006     Proceedings of the British Academy ,2009     Viator ,2007
